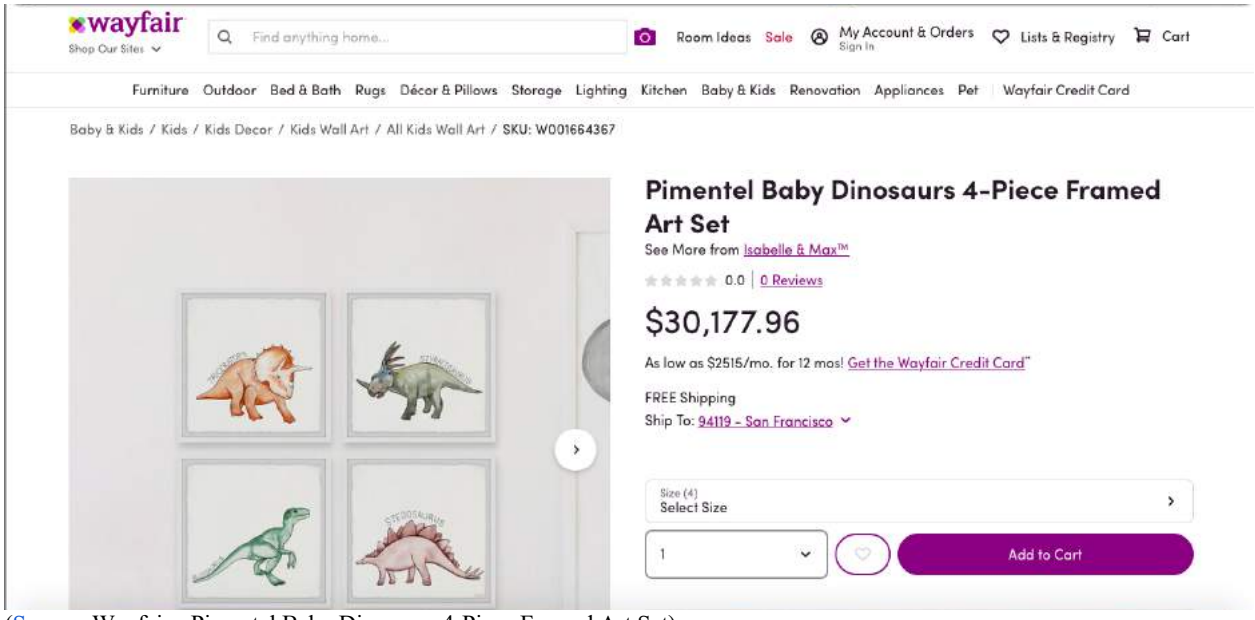
Chapter

As of July 2020, no official investigation has been declared on the publicly listed company Wayfair, known as an e-commerce digital platform with over thousands of global suppliers. Immediately the mainstream media and even "fact-checking websites" such as Snopes were quick to respond explicitly confirming any allegations of the company accessorising to human trafficking. Even without any credible findings by law enforcement, it was somehow declared false instantly despite theoretically having no proof that it was false. Some media outlets claimed to have received an official statement from Wayfair that denied it, although presented no evidence of this. The theory had circulated online believed to be from a Reddit thread, following suspicion over strangely overpriced items within the online store.



(Source: Wayfair - Pimentel Baby Dinosaurs 4-Piece Framed Art Set)

In this exhibit, we see on Wayfair that retailer 'Isabelle & Max' has listed a 4 piece framed art set for kids for approximately $30,177.96 USD, which in comparison with other listings of the same product is well above the recommended retail price. Despite being able to purchase the identical stocked product from competitors for less than $200, there are products being listed on Wayfair and similar sites with excessive markups. Since we know that fine art can be used to provide tax-deductible donations which someone owing $30K in taxes could take advantage of its subjective pricing to reimburse, then this is possible but how could it be misused.

CYCLISTANONS

Like any black market product that is sold on the surface web, it is done anonymously through the appearance of a seemingly innocent product that would be less likely to alarm anyone. The product however will need to ensure that no legitimate consumers attempt to "purchase" it, so therefore the listing is purposely done with the cover of a high-demand product that clearly avoids competitive pricing or any cost leadership. In the event the listing is discovered by someone outside the ring, then the pricing will simply cause the customer to substitute to a competitor.

Even if it is legitimately being used for human trafficking, the question comes towards what would happen if someone were to unknowingly purchase the product. Unless they reviewed the in-demand product with competitors, they might assume price skimming or premium pricing. If they were to instantly send actual captives, then unwittingly someone who stumbled upon this could easily blow the whole scheme apart easily. The most plausible theory is that with a secret code, the 'promo/discount code' would be needed to immediately execute the black market sale. The mystery is also the logistics associated with how the supposed supply chain would even work, especially as the "product" would likely come from a Wayfair distribution centre. Furthermore, some theories have suggested that the name of said products resembled the first names of missing children, which unless entirely unique might also not be coincidental given the high rate of missing persons with a common name.

It's been seen across the Wayfair domain, and yet if this was a legitimate seller trying to generate a profit then why would they sell a product with a clear threat of substitution. The same night light can be purchased for less than 20 pounds at other retailers compared to 20,000 here.

Product Overview
Features

For this cactus wall art, the listed price was $99,999.99, and strangely if you were to search up the inventory SKU code for the product using a particular foriegn search engine you'll end up directly with images of ONLY prepubescent young girls. What else struck out about this listing for the wall decor was the usage of its props, which someone either directly or indirectly placed to hint viewers. The books that are displayed include:

- A Rose for Virtue by Norah Lofts - Based on the private life of Hortense Beauharnais who became the step-daughter of Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte in a post revolutionary France. Story navigates around the drama of the French court while the protagonist marries Napoleon's brother Louis I of Holland despite a secret romantic affair with a military officer named Charles

- Primary Colors by Joe Klein - Roman à clef novel that gives an allegory that mimics 42nd US President Bill Clinton's electoral campaign in 1992
- The Kennedys in Hollywood by Lawrence J. Quirk - Talks about the Kennedy family ties with Hollywood including JFK's relationship with Marilyn Monroe
- Astray by Emma Donoghue - Anthology book with multiple stories with characters who end up in different scenarios including being enslaved and sold into sex work, through the story they travel across borders anonymously under duress,
- A Season in Hell by Jack Higgins - New York socialite hires an ex-SAS operative to investigate and hunt down the killers of her stepson only to find they are part of a more sinister underworld.

The most alarming response was this one that clarified a sarcastic question that attempted to play trafficking allegations by asking about the colour of the product. Whether this was a joke or a genuine black market sale, the question did not match the context it was being used in. JiaQi is selling a wooden desk and although it specifies colour code for the same model, then it would imply the same material is being used to construct said product. Assuming that the same type of varnish coating is used to mutate the appearance, then the decision on colour should not affect how it is cleaned. Varnishes create a non-porous layer meaning any dirty and dust could not be embedded in the more porous paint layers beneath.

Looking at JiaQi's other listings also appear to be 48 other dropshipping products of random furniture and other products with reasonable pricing close to the recommended retail price. Maybe this is a legitimate business although it is questioned why a single office desk, which even acknowledged by the seller would list the price strangely above in comparison.

Identifying Victims of Human Trafficking Examples:

- Clear signs that an individual is being controlled and/or abused either physically, socially or mentally, sometimes they might not even realised they are being imprisoned and assume its a normal occurrence expected in their reality
- The individual is unable to speak on their accord or share one own's information without permission
  A third party is currently in possession of official documentation (especially those required for legal travel) which prohibits the individual from accessing
- No declarable form of labour agreement or transparency is made for employment conditions suggesting the individual is being forced or manipulated into their work
- Red flags present if they appear to have a relationship with a abusive, manipulative and unusual partner, if this partner tries to shrug of any of the individual's mannerisms as "personality trait" or "mental illness" this may or may not be evident
- Unusual amount of supervision (use common sense with the age) that a third party has, who might try and observe behaviour or prevent any socialising, contact or activities by the individual. Most of the time, an abuser will try and segregate their victims from others and limit their interaction only with them to allow abuse to occur without interference.
- Inactive presence on social media or no possible methods of contact available
- Communication barriers or extreme inability to speak with others (often victims are brought to places where their native language is rare, or have exhibited symptoms of muteness from psychological harm)
- Fear of reaching out for help due to a sign of distrust among others, this can also be due to the fear of repercussions their traffickers could do if they were alarmed or even possibly that there is no available avenue to possibly help them
- Displaying signs of extended absence, withdrawal or lack of motivation (often this is because they lose a sense of hope given their lack of control in their lives)

- Little to no access to any assets can be identified in the possession of the individual, which can be a concern if its suggested they are conducting some form of work
- Movement of the individual is strictly confined, showing no signs of being able to leave their residence or place of work. They might also exhibit routines of a controlled schedule or unable to foster a sense of planning for future events
- Appears threatened or submissive when in the presence of certain individuals often presenting signs of helplessness and paranoia if discovered
- Seemingly has an excessive amount of impractical or strange debt to a third party
- Very ambiguous description about their background history (possible sign of concealing trauma). They might also lack any knowledge of their location and appear to be continuously transferred

Generally, human trafficking is considered an "invisible crime" that makes it difficult to detect with the eye looking in plain sight. It's not to be confused with just 'human smuggling' as it can also just involve coercing the victim without movement. They can come in the format of the illicit sex trade, domestic servitute, forced marriage, slavery, debt bontage, organ harvesting or similar types of activity. The motivation for engaging in human trafficking is irrelevant to the situation. Often these victims might be conditioned into a state of fear, distrust, denial and possibly trained to protect their traffickers. The International Labour Organization estimates roughly over 40 million people are victims of human trafficking yearly, with only .04% of cases being properly identified.

Reporting human trafficking can be done through the relevant law enforcement with jurisdiction in that field. Even if it's occurring in another country, local police might be able to enter through INTERPOL's services and databases that helps agencies facilitate cooperation with other police agencies around the world.

The McMartin Pre-school Case

Back during the 1980s well until the 1990s, one of the longest and expensive criminal cases within the United States would occur against the McMartin family within the Manhattan Beach, California. The family had operated a day-care business in which what would uncover years of satanic ritual abuse, child trafficking and sexual abuse that was rampant. Out of the 400 children that were interviewed by law-enforcement, only 360 were able to confirm allegations of abuse. Many of the early accusations were dismissed as "bizarre" and after a seven-year trial, all charges were dropped due to a 'lack of sufficient evidence'. It wasn't until parents had hired a private investigator to look into the supposed 'tunnels' that the children claimed to exist at the site, which through ground penetrating radar this was discovered (although there's nothing illegal about owning tunnels). Throughout the time of the trial's peak, it was considered part of what was a moral panic for "satanic cult scare".

THE TUNNELS FOUND AT THE McMARTIN PRE-SCHOOL
A PRELIMINARY REPORT

A formal report will be released when forensic tests are concluded.

- 45 foot tunnel
  - 9 foot wide subterranean entrance found under west wall of the "Dog" room (Classroom 4 [redacted] classroom).
    - Avocado tree roots cut on both sides of the entrance.
    - Disney bag, "Copyright 1982," found 4-1/2 feet below the classroom floor and 3' to 6' in from entrance and under foundation, Classroom 4.
  - Tunnel proceeded south, then east 45 feet through Classrooms 4 and 3, and north, then east 10 feet within Classroom 4.
    - Tunnels were 30" wide, 44" to 46" deep, with top of the tunnel 30" under the classroom floor.
    - The footing between Classrooms 3 and 4 was arched where the tunnel passed underneath and 12" shorter in depth at this location than same footing 12 feet to then north.
      - Four large, upright containers were found in the tunnel under the arch, obviously hand placed.
  - A 9 foot wide chamber was found along the tunnel under Classroom 4. Top of chamber and top of sections of the tunnel had layers of plywood covered with tar paper which had apparently been supported by cinder blocks and 2" x 2" and 2" x 4" wooden posts found underneath.
  - Tunnel features made it evident that tunnel was hand dug.
- 7 foot tunnel extending into the triplex next door
  - Tunnel extended from the bathrooms off the office and Classroom 1 to the front yard of the triplex next door. Front yard concealed from street by three-car garage.
  - Children described entrance and exiting tunnel in triplex yard exactly where tunnel and exit were found.
  - 1 39" x 41" area under a hole cut in this neighbor's bathroom floor had been excavated and subsequently filled.
- Other significant facts
  - A small, white plastic plate with three pentagrams hand drawn on top of light green paint was found by the archaeologists in the stratified dirt in the play yard.
  - Per historical archaeologist, pentagrams were hand drawn by an adult and not

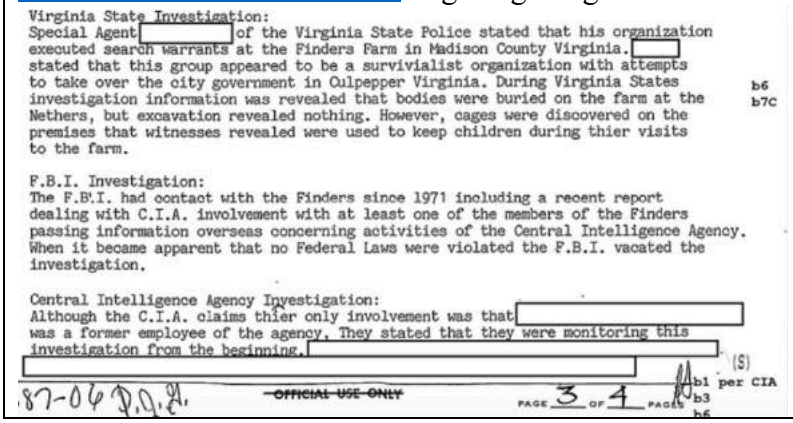
(Documents that appear to have been accidently provided alongside another FOIA request from the US Federal Bureau of Investigation)

These maps of the tunnels were released along documents paired with the convicted case against the Finders Cult, which dates its origin in Washington DC as early as the 1930s. On the 4th February 1987, two men dressed in dark black suits Douglas Ammerman and Michael Houlihan, were arrested in Tallahassee, Florida after a woman spotted them with six children aged between 2-7 who appeared "unkempt" and showing signs of physical and sexual abuse. They were found to have been living in a van and was being transported to Mexico for a cult practice, however although charges were initially dismissed due to the actual parents consenting, they would later open a bigger picture starting with being convicted on child abuse. While Tallahassee Police Department maintained a cover-up of the child-sex abuse records, around the same time there was an investigation by US Customs and Border Protection and DC Metro Police against the cult that basically sheltered the entire lives of the members. The cult had many suspicions of everything ranging from international human trafficking, satanic rituals and even connections to government agencies. There's so much and a lot to explain over this story which you could research yourself to speed things up or consider watching the Devil Worshiping Special by Geraldo Rivera on NBC 1988 to get a good glance.



Virginia State Investigation:
Special Agent [redacted] of the Virginia State Police stated that his organization executed search warrants at the Finders Farm in Madison County Virginia. [redacted] stated that this group appeared to be a survivialist organization with attempts to take over the city government in Culpepper Virginia. During Virginia States investigation information was revealed that bodies were buried on the farm at the Nethers, but excavation revealed nothing. However, cages were discovered on the premises that witnesses revealed were used to keep children during thier visits to the farm.

F.B.I. Investigation:
The F.B.I. had contact with the Finders since 1971 including a recent report dealing with C.I.A. involvement with at least one of the members of the Finders passing information overseas concerning activities of the Central Intelligence Agency. When it became apparent that no Federal Laws were violated the F.B.I. vacated the investigation.

Central Intelligence Agency Investigation:
Although the C.I.A. claims thier only involvement was that [redacted] was a former employee of the agency. They stated that they were monitoring this investigation from the beginning. [redacted]

Human trafficking is an issue that these criminals can be openly discussed with related associates online even on the surface web. They will usually try to use encrypted formats or even make their actions known or obvious. And while yes while some of them are covered with their freedom of speech, there are still boundaries where it becomes maliciously applied. Opinions are fine but reaching a stage where people are being targeted and even blackmailed into doing things is problematic. Three levels of internet exist, one is the surface web which anyone can access online such as Facebook, then you got the deep web which are encrypted links such as your emails and records inaccessible by conventional search engines and then the dark web which utilize overlaying networks of the internet in order to access via correct configurations.

Yes you should. Repeatedly. You should keep her pregnant through no less than three unwanted rape brats and then simply disappear from her life completely once her body is totally ruined.

Not all humans are equal, for some of them were born superior to others.
Welcome to our website
In this website, we attempt to illustrate several experiments that are being conducted by our group on human subjects. The people chosen for this range of experiments are usually homeless people that are unregistered citizens.
Experimentations range from :
starvation and water/fluid restriction vivisection/pain tolerances infectious diseases and organ effects transfusions drug trials
sterilization
neonate and infant tolerances to x-rays, heat, and pressure.
Laboratory examinations (full blood counts, urinalysis, chemistries... etc) are done at hospitals where we take the samples and send them under other real patients' names. The results are carefully dispersed so as not to arouse suspicion.
The bodies of the dead are dissected and then disposed off in dumpsters of meat shops where their bodies will not be found.
No IRB approval was sought for this secret range of experimentations.
The high command oversees all operations and designates potential targets.
The names of the test subjects will be kept confidential. Only their serial numbers will be displayed.

I envy little kids who get raped, especially anally. The ones who are 6 or 7 y.o are the luckiest of all. Imagine experiencing a grown man's hard shaft at that age. At least they're getting dick, I didn't get any dick when I was younger. Someone found them so attractive he wanted to fuck them hard anally, but I was such an ugly duckling, no pedophile would touch me. Being a little 6 y.o kid & getting anal raped is a badge of honor. Little kids who were raped by pedophiles should be proud of themselves.

What were we thinking? Why would any sane man vote for a law that would say that he couldn't partake of beautiful 12-yo girls' snatches? How could a man look at the pert breasts of, say, [redacted] and be like, "Yeah, let's just vote against our ever being allowed to have a girl like that"?
It boggles the mind. And society would even say, "You're sick to desire that"? Nah man, it would be Where fucking 12 yo minifoids is perfectly legal. The AOC in most Mexican states is 12.
The very first 12 yo minifoid I ever fucked was in Mexico. She was a gift from another fellow gringo who brought her to my hotel room. She was apparently a virgin, which shows my acquaintance had my best interests in mind. I fucked her raw in all three holes & have been looking for younger ever since.
I'm pretty sure it's easy to get much younger down there if you want.
The main disadvantages, as I see it, are the ultraviolent drug gangs, thieving police & general nastiness of the mestizo race, but if you can get over that, it's a hidden gem for enjoying minifoids, even very young minifoids.
You could even have an orgy with minifoids if you're willing to go the extra mile.

What if a bunch of guys pooled their money to have a rape house

I know this has been done before. Girls are sometimes like, "Yeah I went over to their place and they raped me, and later I heard this other girl saying the same thing happened to her. Those guys basically have a rape house together."
It's not like the cops have any evidence that what happened wasn't consensual.
What if you just rented the same house and everyone had their own cage where they kept their foid? With housing prices going up, maybe the rapey have to pool their resources.
You can even rent an already-equipped sex dungeon. HuffPost is now a part of Verizon Media You can always say that all those cages and stuff are for BDSM.

(Example thread from a pro-rape online forum for incels, literally. If you don't know who Josef Fritzl is, it is a Austrian case that was notorious in 2008 when a 73-year old man was revealed to had kidnapped his victims and held them captive in his basement for 24 years all while being raped and sexually abused. This post of course isn't the actual Josef Fritzel but people here simply glorify, fantasize how they could "do better" and phrase his actions)

Surfacing on blogs with these fanbase discussion boards like this appear to be following on the discourse using the ideas of the writer. The writer who has amassed over thousands of supporters uses this discourse to continue his ideology. In particular, it has included the promotion of a lifestyle that supports crimes such as rape, abuse and encouraging stalking and sexual harassment of unsuspecting women. Members on this particular forum discuss precisely on select locations where they will be able to target people, offering comments and advice on ‘tactics’. For these people it’s like learning a new “sport”, such as methods on how to lure women of different ages to ensuring they remain silenced about their behavior.

I know it might sound ridiculous, but it's an evident threat where although nobody should feel like they are unsafe, people should be able to take precaution and use common sense if necessary. Therefore, it also a crucial role for bystanders to possibly speak out and discourage anything that might be of concern especially if it can reduce the damage against a person. For people who are at risk, their presence or existence isn’t necessarily the problem but how they are able to understand how to reduce and limit the risk of harm.

On the darkest side of the dark web, there is a truly terrifying connected community of sick-minded individuals who are able to remain in contact like a social media group chat. They have no disregard for their discussion as they might mingle over methods of abduction, their types of victims, how they hide victims and control them and ultimately the bragging rights of their own pleasures. Some of the reality of this is very difficult to explain especially if it will haunt your ability to soundly sleep, hearing the cleanest explanation from Wikipedia or the news about some of the things that occurred is already hard enough to go through. One way to put it, is that there are things that you would never wish upon anyone, not even your worst enemy, because the sudden thought of a tortuous method is already hard enough.

To infiltrate websites like this would require a military grade browser that not only anonymizes your web traffic but is able to re-route into an encrypted domain that is not indexed. It is also strictly important that the highest level of privacy and security settings are maximised as much as possible. You would then need to figure out the correct resource located on the network to reach these criminals. An estimated 80% of all dark net material visits are related to sexual abuse and pedophilla and often this can be very difficult even for intelligence agencies to pursue. Usually they might trade through the use of explicitly gained material or cryptocurrency to help enable a sense of verification or allow unrecorded transactions. Sometimes this can occur on the surface web through plain sight, usually due to the confidence that any suspicion has been deterred against them.

Surprisingly, the behaviour of these individuals is very calm even in very explicit situations where no sound minded person could cope. They communicate with each other like it’s a friendly weekend get-together despite the nature of the activity, often they will assist each other. Although there is no doubt that on these websites that aim to target victims and that the members have likely been put on an offender registry or convicted, there is a parallel to the types of people seen. There are people of all age ranges, and they might be heavily dedicated while some simply might participate to earn a living while others do little to none. On another strange note, there are sometimes these “ethics code of conduct” which might sound good, but ultimately, they would only apply this to escape their guilt. Any sane person would not be okay with it, but even so they will try and label “rules” such as ‘No sexual contact before age of 5’ or something like ‘speaking in a respectful manner’. And then again, these are websites that teach users to “hunt down and forcibly take women” to “uploading torture videos and live-streams”. You basically have an online following of so many people that chances are they are within proximity appearing strongly desensitized and normal to their actions. There are likely people who probably feel no remorse as they believe it's "their right", and then those who regret continuing it.

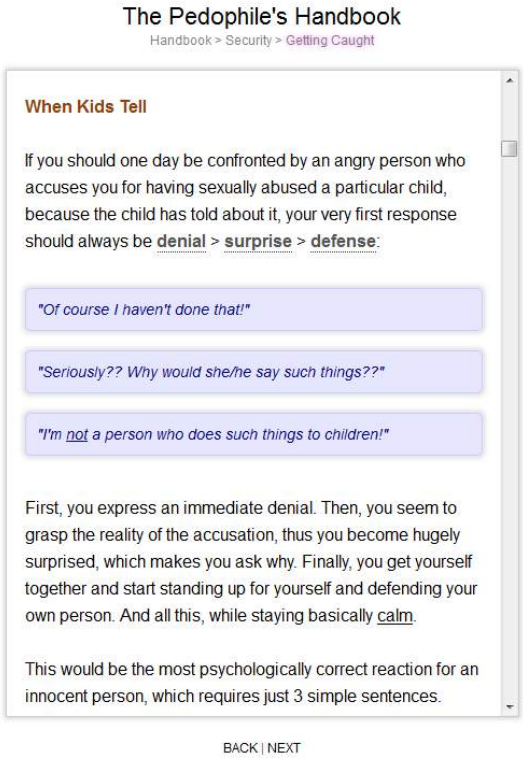
Let's expose some of these people through one of their handbooks, I will give prior warning that the contents are highly detailed and disturbing. I urge you not to take any of their advice even if it sounds so glorified and simple, but rather develop a better understanding how we can make a safer community against this hostile content:



The Pedophile's Handbook
Handbook > Security > Getting Caught
When Kids Tell
If you should one day be confronted by an angry person who accuses you for having sexually abused a particular child, because the child has told about it, your very first response should always be denial > surprise > defense:
"Of course I haven't done that!"
"Seriously?? Why would she/he say such things??"
"I'm not a person who does such things to children!"
First, you express an immediate denial. Then, you seem to grasp the reality of the accusation, thus you become hugely surprised, which makes you ask why. Finally, you get yourself together and start standing up for yourself and defending your own person. And all this, while staying basically calm.
This would be the most psychologically correct reaction for an innocent person, which requires just 3 simple sentences.

The Pedophile's Handbook
Handbook > Pedophilia > Challenges
Just use duckduckgo.com to search for "photo communities", and you will find various of such communities containing lots of stupid parents with expensive photo equipment who share lots of pictures of their stunningly beautiful toddlers and children, with closeups of their beautiful faces and red lips, some even in makeup and being partially nude, some even crying, and in many different clothings and body positions.
Guess how I got the images for this handbook!
It can also be pictures of your own children, children within your family, your neighbors children, children from the daycare facility or school you may work at, or pictures that you've taken by yourself outdoors.
You may then pretend through fantasy, while using the latter masturbation technique, that the child you are watching is licking and sucking on your penis, or exploring it in a flimsy way with its small hands. Concentrate on the children, by looking deeply into their eyes, while fantasizing like this.

You might look at this and assume this is some sort of online meme or something you'll see on the dark web for your amusement, but this is a real issue that could warrant an indictment. In fact in May 2018, federal law enforcement in Chicago, IL prosecuted a 62 year old man who was sentenced to 37 years imprisonment for sexual abuse against multiple minors and possession of child pornography. One concerning thing that was discovered among over 45,000 digital files was the fact the offender possessed the ‘pedophile handbook’. The radicalisation of these individuals not only become detrimental to the mental health of victims but overall stresses society. Groups such as NAMBLA, who advocate for acceptance and the right to engage in their deviant sexuality activities are being promoted to reform society. It is being done even towards toddlers to exploit a form of cult-like dynamic entertainment for perverted adults. One of the largest networks being the Wonderland Club significantly survived for some time, where members around the world would submit 10,000 original images on arrival before continuing to distribute child pornography and other snuff content. To give a rough estimate, about 50-90% of users who access child pornography are likely to be hands-on abusers or at an increased probability of engaging in a future related crime. You might assume this is an unrealistic figure especially if you imagine someone sitting in a dark room all day, but this also relies on how the demanding content is produced and exchanged. Even through the mainstream media and a simple google search you can see how they try to give moral relativism to promote a platform and empathise with certain behaviour. Through these, they are able to convince the general public to mask their outlook where it can be difficult to recognise such actions.

(U) Symbols and Logos Used by Pedophiles to Identify Sexual Preferences

(U//FOUO) This intelligence bulletin addresses Crimes Against Children Standing Intelligence Requirements Set contained in Q-FBI-2200-005-06, HRWC CAC-VI.A.5.

(U//LES) Pedophiles, to include those who sexually abuse children as well as those who produce, distribute, and trade child pornography, are using various types of identification logos or symbols to recognize one another and distinguish their sexual preferences. To specifically indicate the pedophile's gender preference, members of pedophilic organizations encourage the use of descriptions such as "boylove", "girllove", and "childlove."[1] These symbols have been etched into rings and formed into pendants, and have also been found imprinted on coins.

(U) The BoyLover logo (BLogo) is a small blue spiral-shaped triangle surrounded by a larger triangle, whereby the small triangle represents a small boy and the larger triangle represents an adult man.[2] A variation of the BLogo is the Little Boy Lover logo (LBLogo), which also embodies a small spiral-shaped triangle within a larger triangle; however, the corners of the LBLogo are rounded to resemble a scribbling by a young child.[3] Images of the BLogo and LBLogo symbols are depicted below.

(U//LES) FBI investigations in several cities have uncovered several symbols used by pedophiles to proclaim their attraction to children. After a seizure of a subject's computer in connection with an Innocent Images case in the Jacksonville Division, a Computer Analysis Response Team forensic examiner came across an unfamiliar symbol that was integrated into a Web site banner named "ATBOYS.COM, where the "A" in "ATBOYS" was actually the BoyLove symbol and written as follows: ATBOYS.com. It was further determined that "ATBOYS" is an acronym for Attracted To Boys.[5] These pedophilia symbols also appear on Web sites such as one of the banners advertised on www.boylover.net, shown below.[6]

They appear like innocent childish sketches of symbols but as mentioned by the US Federal Bureau of Investigation go on a larger scale then among a group, but have been a political tool for promoting their pedophilla ideology. Across the world, various law enforcement agencies have confirmed the use of these symbols being universally used. They have been used as slang and code-words in a similar fashion to how the illicit drug market functions, ensuring it is inconspicuous to the uninitiated. Using these code words help facilitate communication where it cannot alarm the general public, and this occurred unknowingly for some time. For human trafficking, having a victim in the possession of logo can also mean that they are ready to be caught and traded for sexual abuse. It is still yet unknown whether this is still actively used but can help detect any alarming signs if arisen.

Quick reference:

- Dark Blue Spiraling Triangle - Interest in young and underage males
- Dark Blue Spiraling Circle - Interest in smaller young underage males
- Two Layer Heart Shape Heart - Interest in adult females and underage girls
- Pastel coloured Butterfly - No preference over gender of underage minor

(Article on Cheese and Pizza Emojis being used) (Of course when the Metro UK caught on with this, they still had the audacity to call all of this a "conspiracy theory")

The application of these symbols has been rampantly used in corrupt organizations ranging from social enterprises, businesses and even child protective services. How frequently can it be identified? We can observe some of its public level of usage where it might be alarming or common which may or may not be right or wrong. It doesn't necessarily confirm any guilt as it's always a coincidence although interesting to question their decision making.

Some "fact-checking websites" or the mainstream media will try to deny this as nothing, but with common sense, any parent who witnesses children interacting with what the FBI has even recognised as potentially dangerous, should make informed decisions if any strange interaction with the logos set red flags. Possibly, criminals might have simply taken advantage of logos for the purposes of targeting children given the likely brand recognition and emotional association. Very likely in most scenarios this was possibly where the coding initially was inspired from before being misused:

(Source: This logo was copyrighted as Blogo © 1997 Kalos for the website "Free Spirits", an online platform for "Boylovers". The copyright compliance policy quotes "The BLogo's use is restricted to BL positive use only. Modifications and variations will be tolerated (indeed, are encouraged!) as long as the BL positive message is respected.")

CYCLISTANONS

(Unilever's Heartbrand)	The heartbrand logo designed by Carter Wong Design before 1998 which was implemented for the respective national brand variants of Unilever's ice cream companies globally. Instantly the products of each of its ice cream subsidiaries can be recognised globally across 40 countries, also serving as the largest ice cream manufacturer. According to Unilever's corporate website, the symbol is designed to represent its philosophy 'Live from the heart' and quote "Here there's joy"
	Besta Pizza is a Washington DC pizzeria established in 1992 neighbouring Comet Ping Pong and Little Red Fox. The logo continued until 2017 where it was altered to eliminate the spiral lines within the symbol.
(Logo as shown on menus at Comet Ping Pong Pizzeria)	The menu used at Comet Ping Pong depicts two table tennis paddles, which although is frequently used for "ping pong logos" given the name of the restaurant is titled strangely. The tagline is described as 'Play, Eat, Drink" which in terms of consumer appeal seems strange especially as most might associate it with 'Eat and Drink' better with all due respect. Note this is also being presented on a menu where you order food, which although you could say people get hungry after playing table tennis, the first letters of each word seem to construct an acronym of "P.E.D". Assuming it is a coded acronym with acrostics used, then it possibly might mean 'Performance-Enhancing Drug' or even 'Pedophile'.
(Pierre Elliott Trudeau Foundation logo as displayed on 2015-2016 annual report)	Although sometimes attributed to current Candian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau, the Pierre Elliott Trudeau Foundation is honoured for Pierre Eliot (both former prime minister and father of Justin Trudeau). Currently Trudeau himself remains solely just as a foundation member, with this particular logo only being used for an annual report once before attempting to cover up.
(Terasol Artisans symbol)	Terasol Artisans held this previous logo before 2017, the same design was also used by many other organizations relating to children (e.g childhood trauma centre, support service for children, adoption agencies etc)

Three of these logos seem reasonably alarming, the first being Besta Pizza, the menu symbol used by Comet Ping Pong and Terasol Artisans which all are located in Connecticut Avenue, Washington DC. The restaurant Comet Ping Pong is one of the central venues that is referenced within the emails leaked by WikiLeaks during the 2016 Hilary Clinton presidential campaign.

In accordance with the United States Department of State's policy, sensitive official communication must be done through the federal government's secure servers. This is crucial to ensure full end to end encryption contact can be made, remaining concealed while forwarding information through a server. Sometimes using a private server that may not have a sufficient TLS Certificate can risk information being intercepted. In some cases, removing classified information to be used within a private server even for official duties could constitute a violation of Title 18 U.S. Code § 1924.

During the tenure as former US Secretary of State Hilary Rodham Clinton, the use of Blackberry devices to conduct both personal and official was utilized despite security personnel strongly advising against it. Clinton had used an email account that was hosted in the basement of her private New York residence before seeking services from Platte Rivers Network in Denver to do so. Rather than using an email service provided by the government, the personally registered email domain of ClintonMail.Com was used instead. Given the simplicity of the email server being breached and remotely controlled over network connection, it was eventually hacked. Although work-related emails were eventually supposed to be archived for record-keeping within the government, the server had already programmed a retention period to automatically delete many of the thousands of emails regularly. Some of the leaked emails were classified material was exposed, various administrative staff working within Clinton's office would also be deemed equally liable for using the same server.

Ineffective security measures to mitigate breaches of information was also problematic for other associates within the Obama Administration and even the Democratic National Committee. Chairman of the 2016 Hilary Clinton Presidential Campaign John Podesta was also compromised after being manipulated into a spear-phishing attack, this leaked data from a work/personal Gmail account after a fake log-in page exposed the password credentials. The emails could then be authenticated as genuine given the DKIM was able to trace back to the initial server domain and can be now accessed through WikiLeaks. When the emails became leaked, Podesta and those around him tried arguing the narrative that Russian intelligence hackers were complicit in the leak, however another theory lies to Democratic National Committee member Seth Rich, who was accused of leaking the emails and forwarding it to WikiLeaks' Julian Assange. On July 10th 2016, Rich was found dead by gunshot wounds caused by unknown perpetrators for unknown reasons according to Met Police DC. It is always possible that this murder was part of the "Clinton body count" as the DNC would be motivated to prevent Rich from exposing further emails.

Alternatively, these people know how to remain anonymous with their actions and censor against the public. In 2017, CBS Atlanta affiliate 46 News Anchor Ben Swann was terminated from his position after presenting factual evidence that appeared to present Pizzagate as unconfirmed and uninvestigated. Swann who aired 'Reality Check' was forced by his employer to eliminate all contents of his show before leaving due to criticism of journalistic performance. Having previously accredited with a bachelor's & master's degree at age 16 and 22 years of journalism experience, Swann currently reports for RT America. A FOIA request into the District of Columbia Metropolitan Police also reveals that no investigation has occurred by the agency into the allegations given its status as a "conspiracy theory". With prima facie, the media should also have the integrity to recognize that it has never been debunked outside its organization. Labelling it as absurd or false is simply dishonest and refusing to provide all the confirmed information only suggests they are biased or possibly complicit. If you were to commit a crime and get away with it, how good would it be if you avoided any investigation and simply have the media parrot your plea that "I didn't do nothing".

So, let's take a look at some of the tens of thousands of emails first from Mr John Podesta, many which appear to present codewords and subtle gestures:

Sent from my iPad

This leaked email above as sent by Tony Podesta on Friday 31st January 2014 was received by his brother John Podesta and sister-in-law Mary Podesta. Supposedly we can assume the common parlance of "torture chamber" being a comedic hyperbole for describing being at work hungover. It might have been unusual and a stretch as no possible reference is given to a workplace (e.g work is like a torture chamber) but for now we have to assume it's a friendly banter and an inside joke.

(Source :Leaked video of alleged abuse by Podesta. The only plausible suggestion of it being him is the voice and that the victim refers to the adult male in the video as "John" and "Skippy")

A very disturbing video was leaked online with what appeared to have been allegedly the voice of John Podesta with a young pre-pubescent child being abused inside a shower cubicle. In the video we hear screaming from both ends while a male figure in the dark appears to beat and torture a crying child from escaping the shower cubicle. We know in the past that Podesta described to Huffington Post that he has "problems managing his anger, and lets out an 'evil twin' character called 'Skippy'" who basically he describes as a violent second personality to express his rage. Through the video, we hear the alleged adult forcing the child to call out his name, to which he answers "John" and "Skippy". Given the strobe lights, it appears that the video was filmed secretly and taking place while a concert was occurring in the background. Surprisingly, the music also appears to match Heavy Breathing which we know also performs at Comet Ping Pong.

(2012 Live Performance of Heavy Breathing at Comet Ping Pong Pizza. Notice, the lighting colours that are used)

Here is the most accurate transcript i could articulate myself:

OLD MAN: "You think you're hot shit don't ya"
Victim screams in the background
OLD MAN: "You think that?...Listen Up!"
OLD MAN: "What's my fa...what's my name?!, What's my name?!"
VICTIM: "JOHN"
OLD MAN: "What's my other name, What do you call me?. I am your father, from now on you will call me your father..you hear...shut up!. You will call me your father..what is my name huh"
Continued screaming as beating continues with a broom and what appears to be hot water
OLD MAN: "Brian i want to hear it!, That's it, Say it again"
VICTIM: "Ok Skippy"
OLD MAN: "Say it again, yeah that's right, yeah thats right im your daddy now, I'm not your fucking daddy now what's my name"

OLD MAN: "I'm just a kid who's 14 each day i grow some more..i stand for something more..are you...god...little...finding my way..." mumbling inhibits verbal tone as the adult male appears to squeal in a high pitched tone to speak
Victim screams excessively, appears to be more than one individual at the scene

- Former US Federal Bureau of Investigation Special Agent and Head of the Los Angeles Division Ted Gunderson initially claimed his belief at a 1995 conference in Dallas following a child molestation case, that there was a proliferation of a human trafficking ring among an occultist group within a shadow government. These also included claims of a suspected child trafficking auction being sold in Las Vegas to Middle Eastern buyers and estimated claims of thousands of ritualistic human sacrifices have been conducted in New York. In 2008, Gunderson tested positive for arsenic and cyanide poisoning though survived. Few days before his death in 2011, Gunderson addressed at a conference that elaborated on more in-depth claims relating topics of MK-Ultra and Human Trafficking for an hour. An earlier affidavit from Gunderson was presented at Labella v. FBI (2012) that also quoted "thousands of victims have been targeted by an illegal government rogue criminal enterprise that is active 24 hours a day within the U.S ... whose administrators can instantly initiate surveillance, phone taps and harassment against any individual in the country".

Georgetown Law Faculty and Staff,

My parents are visiting this weekend, and I need to sell my enormous collection of beanie babies! I've approximately 480 little creatures of joy, and I'm selling each one for $20.00. You must buy all 480, though. It is a collection (not an auction)... They are very respectful and amicable with one another, and they are (for the most part) cat and dog friendly. Some are sassier than others, naturally.

Please let me know! My parents can't find out.

So this email was received by John Podesta midday on July 30th 2015. To add context, Podesta is both alumni of Georgetown University and has acted as a distinguished visitor from the practice among the Law faculty. Currently the only existing record available of a 'Peter Mattingly' at Georgetown University was a Psychology and Sociology major student who did a law internship in 2014. At first glance, the email appears to have the intended impression of Mattingly advertising the sale of his Beanie Babies collection to his colleagues. We can analyse the context, language techniques and use of wording to help gasp an understanding towards the possible meaning of this email.

The email appears to be sent using a Georgetown University Law address domain, which after observation with it's IT Support Service had suggested it was one of the only faculties with its own email domain and broadcast list. We also know that the username is a predetermined University NetID, while faculty, staff and fellows have the option of having a custom full-name in the local part, still being vague on the status of 'Peter'. It is also unclear why the email would be sent through an announcement list where it could be easily exposed by those not involved.

Mattingly specifies that because his parents are visiting, (presumably due to embarrassment) he is wishing to sell a collection of beanie babies yet provides no detail on the collectibles at all. Assuming that a collection of Beanie Babies was being sold, the seller would be expected to highlight the contents to display said artifacts before properly selling the contents. Strangely even Beanie Babies collections as a niche market, this could have been marketed maybe on eBay rather than advertising to a bunch of university faculty, fellows and staff who are less likely to be interested.

Even if you were trying to hide your collection from your parents before they came on the weekend, you sure as hell wouldn't try and have a unlikely last minute sale because surely it could just be hidden somewhere in the house or elsewhere. Considering this guy was comfortable with even informing a bunch of people online (meaning more people than just his parents will know), it may have been plausible that there was a vast amount of hiding space outside his house. The only image that was attached to the email was also an easily reversed search to capture that the supposed collection was actually already a publicly available image.

(Source: This was the only image attached to the email, it was discovered that this was already present online for over a year and likely was not directly taken by Mattingly)

However, if the collection was to be sold entirely then it would generate a revenue of $9600 given 480 of the products are being sold at a price tag of $20 each. Hypothetically using the assumption that this is a valuable collection, if someone were to say sell a stamp bundle, then they would have specified the explicit artifacts that were the feature of the sale. No specifications are given for any of the $20 Beanie Babies nor if they are valuable or not. It would take an appraiser to help identify market value in advance, which Mattingly has made more difficult. Although some Beanie Babies have been sold up to $500,000, most listings are usually sold at a median price of $10 or even as low as a dollar. Without any justification of the value and given the high risk, it is very unlikely that a random mystery box for possibly underpriced beanie babies would successfully sell for $9600. Furthermore, one of the red flags associated with this is that the price is listed for less than $10K, which in accordance with the US Bank Secrecy Act of 1970 requires any cash transactions above $10K to be recorded and if so declared by financial institutions to law-enforcement.

Even for a middle-aged lawyer, it is also strange to describe them as “little creatures of joy” or “sassier than others, naturally”. The description for a toy collection is even characterised as “they are respectful and amicable with one another” which considers who is even writing this. Furthermore, most responsible collectors, especially if they had spent upfront $9600 would have most likely aimed to preserve and suggest they are “cat and dog friendly”. The question is why someone would risk collectibles because surely nobody would let their cat or dog play with it. Even if it’s “cat and dog friendly”, is it worth purchasing an overpriced collector’s edition of Beanie Babies that have most likely been chewed on by pets already?

With this strange juxtaposition between a collector’s offer for beanie babies and black market terms, let’s try and offer a hypothetical translation into the possible meanings.

[Theory] Email from James Mattingly to Faculty of Law at Georgetown University

“Help” - Urgency towards being discovered and need assistance to remove the evidence
“Parents” - Could refer to an incoming law enforcement investigation or even the actual parents finding out the dark secret
“Little creatures of joy”/ “Beanie Babies” - Victims of human trafficking, i dont even want to imagine “480” - Mathematically, if we were to use the significant figure rules then the trailing zero with no decimals would mean we are left with only two digits of 4 & 8. This could mean only 48 is being sold and the zero is a place value, rather than an actual quantity of 480. The email was also sent on a Thursday which might indicate 48 hours remaining till the ‘weekend visit’
“20.00.” - Possibly intended to secretly represent a positive integer and multiple that denotes a figure above 20, such as $2000, $20,000 etc

CYCLISTANONS

“Respectful and amicable” - More submissive in nature and can be controlled easily “Cats and Dogs” - The earliest defined use of this is suggested by Merriam-Webster to derive from Jonathan Swift’s “Complete Collection of Genteel and Ingenious Conversation,” back in 1738 where it was used in large quantities. The nature of this also suggests binary classification, which could mean “cats and dogs” refer to males and females
“Sassier” - Pretty self-explanatory (e.g my beanie babies are sassier)
“Naturally” - We know it's not Toy Story, yet a middle-aged man is exhibiting signs of plushophilia or childishness which I'm not judging, but using it to sell your collection to the extent where it legitimately sounds like the toys have consciousness is questionable.
“X9599” - Appears to be a item model number for Barbie dolls when searched online - On the night of 3rd May 2007, the Podesta brothers were residing at a holiday villa 500 meters from 5A Rua Dr Agostinho da Silva, Praia da Luz, Portugal. 10:12PM on January 6th 2014, Tony Podesta emails his brother John Podesta asking “Would love to get a pizza for an hour? Or come over”. To provide some context, an initial carbon copy email was sent from Tony Podesta to both John Podesta and his wife. Earlier that morning, they were questioned whether they were free for dinner the following week (12th or 13th of January). Mary Podesta (wife of John Podesta) claimed it was not possible as John had scheduled hand surgery, while Tony was due to return on the 12th and later travel to Somalia. Dinner on Martin Luther King Jr was suggested by John Podesta who emailed both his brother and wife saying “That might work. Somalia? Geez”.

Later, Tony Podesta responded to the email thread but instead only forwarded to John Podesta instead of both his wife, asking the question for “pizza for an hour”. This alone was alarming but also questionable as they were able to provide an open timeframe for their dinner yet limited their available time slot for only an hour. You could say that they have very busy working schedules where it’s difficult to fill in gaps for ‘free-time’, but again the following email where John Podesta responds without any time consciousness to suggest he was free mid-afternoon without any punctuality. The thing is that you would generally describe getting something for an hour usually if it’s a service or similar appointment-based nature, while even booking a restaurant table usually has no time restrictions. It doesn’t seem typical or make any sense to ask your brother if you want to spend one specific hour restricted for eating food, given they are accustomed to ask for dinner on a particular day without increments of time.

Assuming they didn’t make an upfront-order or any delivery, it would take 15 minutes alone on average based on most recipes to make a pizza. Also would factor in the restaurant traffic at the time and any additional orders they might have made which will affect the pace. Based on a 2002 study by Cornell University School of Hotel Administration, the average dining time expected was approximately 60.2 minutes alone which again would also vary on different factors such as how long it took to order, amount of food to cook & consume, time spent socialising etc.

A similar email regarding time punctuality and pizza was sent in March 2016, in which “29 st between park and Madison right around corner” is mentioned without any context. Presumably, the location mentioned could be in Manhattan, New York roughly at the Twenty9th Park Madison Condominium Complex, which is between Madison Avenue and Park Avenue. It might also reference 29th Street being a one-way road that intersects both Madison and Park avenue. However, we are made to believe that Tony Podesta could be returning home with “pizza” yet John Podesta responds saying he was busy for pizza. Now this could mean that both brothers at the time lived separately, but the possessive pronoun “home” is conveyed instead of an adjective like “i could bring a pizza to your home”. John also tells Tony “See you at home” meaning it was already definite they were arriving at the same place, with or without something to eat after 6’oclock.

Even so, they would have likely needed to eat dinner at some point, so having pizza at home would probably not disrupt the timing of needing to go to Michigan the following day. He could have even said something like “already had other dinner” or “cooking from home tonight”. This is like saying you are busy eating pizza which could imply John Podesta was heavily occupied where he somehow couldn’t have a meal.

Mary and John
I think you should give notice when changing strategies which have been long in place. I immediately realized something was different by the shape of the box and I contemplated who would be sending me something in the square shaped box. Lo and behold, instead of pasta and wonderful sauces, it was a lovely, tempting assortment of cheeses, Yummy. I am awaiting the return of my children and grandchildren from their holiday travels so that we can demolish them.
Thank you so much. I hope you and your gang are well.
I miss you both
Best wishes fro a merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Ps. Do you think I'll do better playing dominos on cheese than on pasta?

This following email to Mary and John Podesta comes from Herbert Sandler with the email subject titled “Cheese” sent on Christmas. It discusses receiving what appears to be a gift assortment for pasta, sauces and cheeses before mentioning “return of my children and grandchildren from their holiday travels so that we can demolish them”. We are implied that it is an unusual surprise for the hamper gift-box being different than usual, which you can later play and demolish on it, even substituting dominos on pasta or cheese.

Sandler also abbreviates a postscript at the end asking “I’ll do better playing dominos on cheese than on pasta?”. Dominos might have referred to Domino’s Pizza or possibly the game of domino's being played, but the way cheese or pasta is described gives the impression that it is a stimulant of some sort. Another easy possibility is that “Cheese” is a code-word for synthetic drugs that consist of heroin and over-the-counter medicine, which initially was popular among adolescents in Dallas, Texas since 2005. By 2012 the DEA reported Cheese popularity among older people, which Podesta and Sandler being elderly, could have been meant they were using slang back from the 60/70 (both pasta and cheese being drugs).

Possible code-words used by Podesta based on cultural slang and other cryptic language: Hot Dog - Boy

An email from Susan Sandler to John Podesta states that she has received a handkerchief from the realtor that contains a map that is 'pizza-related' which could be John's. Through the previous email originating from Kathryn Tate, we are told that a square cloth handkerchief (white w/black) was found on the kitchen island. We never get an insight how a handkerchief can remotely relate to a pizza, nor why effort is made to deliver it rather than pick it up or something. It is not everyday a White House Counselor would have a handkerchief with a map, let alone a map that somehow was related to pizzas. John Podesta is also quick to confirm that the handkerchief was his, despite not being informed in any previous emails of its appearance other than it was pizza-related. The term pizza is also normally not any ambiguous meaning that would also have a vague answer on the handkerchief.

Tamera Luzzatto who was previously a Chief of Staff for the Office of Hilary Clinton and Jay Rockefeller sends an email to John Podesta, describing the transportation of young children for "further entertainment, and they will be in that pool for sure" (more to come on that). We are told they are organizing a visit to the farm in Lovettsville, Virginia with who appears to be Luzzatto's alleged grandchildren as listed in the email (Ruby, Emerson and Maeve) all while specifying their ages. Note that Luzzatto was coincidentally formerly also a primary adviser on the advisory panel of the National Commission on Children meaning even with that expertise, it's concerning given her emails and blogs. Also, not to mention that commonly most abusers that children face is usually those of immediate family and/or in constant contact with.

- Luzzatto's has been married to David Leiter since 2001, whom has also been a strategic lobbyist for the company Exxon, but also Burisma Holdings, a private Ukrainian natural gas and uranium mining company strongly associated and ran by the Bidens.

Given that the email is addressed to multiple adults including Washington DC lobbyists, journalists, bureaucrats including John Podesta, it is yet unknown why three children young as 7 would be described as entertainment and in this situation why it's relevant. Along the email thread, there were also jokes coming from Lobbyist Drew Littman about the affairs and running for the US Speaker of the House (around the same time as the Dennis Hastert sex abuse scandal). Note that not only is convicted sex offender Dennis Hastert longtime friends with the Podesta brothers but also were accompanying him while he was in Japan committing sexual abuse. Podesta's exchange with Jake Siewert (former US Press Secretary & present Goldman Sachs Head of Communications) was also discussing "vanishing" on the day of Hastert's indictment.

(The Podestas' had days before received an email from Horie Masahiko, who appears to be a professor at Meiji University. Three days after quoting about possibly disappearing into an "undisclosed Japanese island", they suddenly enter into discussion about Camp Nose. While Nose, Osaka is a rural town not an island, they mention staying in touch with Dennis Hastert which they have both done temporarily in Osaka before. At most this is either just a friendly 'long-time-no-see' email describing they are still in touch with the Speaker of the House who got convicted or they were coding a possible escape/disposal of evidence route of some sort)

Anyway, one of the jokes by Littman was saying "i never had an affair, so i passed the Walter Jones test", which likely references a noble persona of Walter B Jones who was the former U.S. Representative for North Carolina's 3rd congressional district. It could also be possible that the inside-joke could have referenced that they would announce their role as Speaker of the House, being a possible play on being a sex offender to qualify as Littman phrases "Thanks for remembering me, as I was planning to use the farm as the backdrop to announce my candidacy for Speaker of the House" which receives a response that Ruth Marcus (Washington Post Journalist) will live stream it.

It is suggested that because it is going to be a temperature of lower 60s (15 degrees celsius), that they should bring a sweater so they could have outdoor dining, which is feasible. One possibility is that given they planned on dining, it could be argued that the "further entertainment" was for any other children the other parents may have accompanied to the farm. However, Luzzatto mentions that a "swim is a possibility" meaning that the adults have full intentions of using the pool, as also no instructions are targeted for anyone specifically to bring necessarily swimming gear meaning they would all have that intention. It is also said "Bonnie" who likely given the email recipients could mean Bonnie Levin who is employed at MedStar, is the "uber service" for the three children. This is questionable as why she would be without any context transporting someone else's children just so they can go into a pool for "entertainment". They could have alternatively even simply stated in the email something like "Bonnie will be transporting Luzzatto's grandchildren to the farm so they can have some entertainment in the heated pool". We know that some of the email recipients are indeed parents or even grandparents themselves (mostly already adult aged), but there is very little information on any intention of bringing kids around that age range to be ‘entertained with the other kids’.

The following are one of the blogs that associates with Luzzatto and her alleged ‘grandchildren’:

If we were to break down one of Luzzatto’s blogs, this here has the subheading describing what appears to be advertising “spend some time with her online, raw and uncut” which is strange in the sense of someone paying for webcam (like webcam model) to watch a young child. It also specifies to “take advantage of this now, as in the future she will have the power of life and death over you”. Here this could seem like a reference to suggest that because of the vulnerable young age, people should take advantage while ‘Evie’ is still weak.

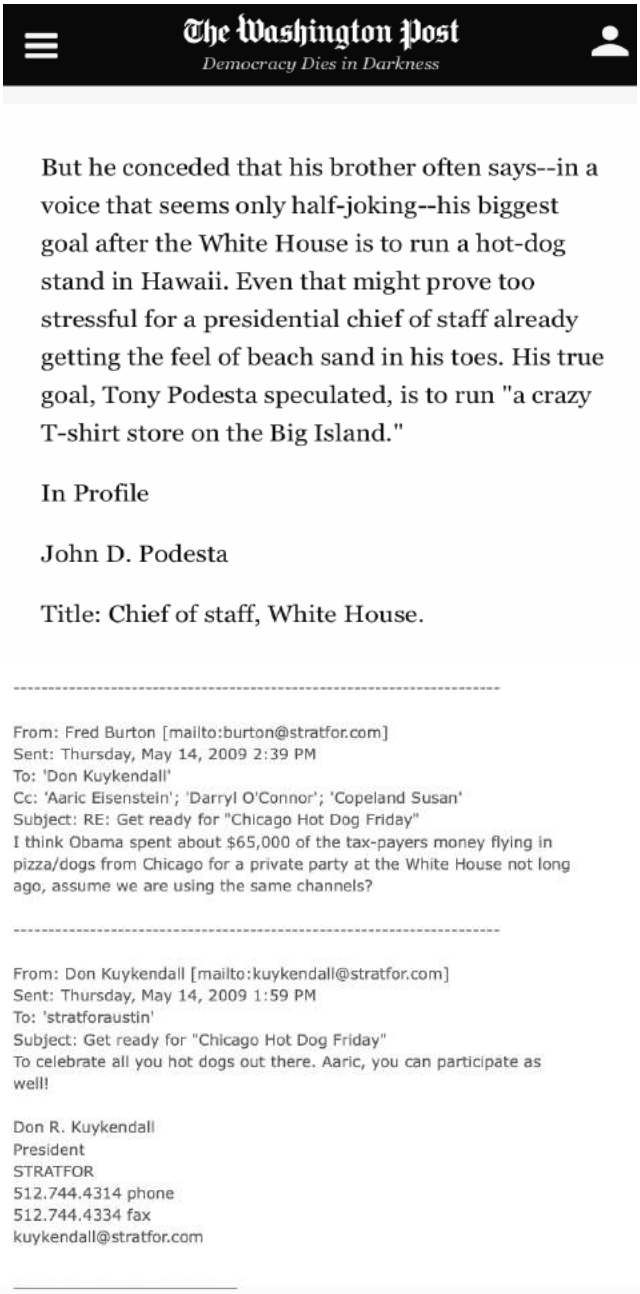
Subject: man, I miss you

The next three months are going to be rougher internally than in Beijing. Between 7th and 1600, no fun. Hope you're doing ok. I'm dreaming about your hotdog stand in Hawaii...

Another confusing email sent by Todd Stern who was the United States Special Envoy for Climate Change at the time where it signs off by saying “I’m drawing about your hotdog stand in Hawaii”. We know that previously both Stern and Podesta were in the process of negotiating delivery of a greenhouse gas emissions treaty with China, and that the next three months included Stern being the United States chief negotiator for the Paris Climate Agreement. The email being sent by a 63-year-old man provides no context on this ‘dream’ nor is there any record of actual ownership of a hot dog license by Podesta in Hawaii. Note the frequency for using food coded language that Podesta has exhibited in various emails. The State of Hawaii also was yet until 2016 to become the last state within the USA to sign a bill that would effectively criminalize sex trafficking into a violent crime and Class A Felony.

One plausible explanation comes from an archived Washington Post article back in 2000 when Podesta was the White House Chief of Staff:



The Washington Post
Democracy Dies in Darkness

But he conceded that his brother often says--in a voice that seems only half-joking--his biggest goal after the White House is to run a hot-dog stand in Hawaii. Even that might prove too stressful for a presidential chief of staff already getting the feel of beach sand in his toes. His true goal, Tony Podesta speculated, is to run "a crazy T-shirt store on the Big Island."

This following email within a thread comes from the President of Stratfor Don R. Kuykendall and Chief Security Officer also from Stratfor Fred Burton, commenting “Obama spent about $65,000 of the tax-payers money flying in pizza/dogs”. It might be pure speculation or an attempt of humour but no official government records can actually verify whether direct payments were made for hot dogs and pizzas from Chicago. However in 2009 one month before this email, there was a White House viewing party for the NFL Super Bowl that was reported to have served pizzas and hot dogs, although remembering this subtle detail is unusual. We also know that based on an interview around the time, former US President Barack Obama commented on Chicago style pizzas from St Louis as a 'favourite'.

Additionally, US Secret Service presidential detail also dictate against the provision of 'outside food' with protocols of strict screening of all food being prepared, or usually in the case of outside establishments are done without advance warning. Generally, if a US President were to order food from outside the White House, it is very unlikely it would be addressed directly to the president in order to help reduce dangers as the restaurant will not know their customer. Even for a White House private event which although $65,000 is still less than most official state banquets, this is very unlikely if the average price for hot dogs/pizza alone were taken into consideration just to serve what could be just less than a few hundred people. Furthermore, this would have never been a possible taxpayer expense that a president could make as it does not directly tie with their official duty, a private party would have been certainly paid personally by the president and not through the federal budget.

This following image comes under an attachment that was sent by the Podesta brothers after receiving the final copy from a graphics employee. This shows the Hillary Clinton pizza logo for the election campaign and the Comet Ping Pong logo, which an event is being held at Tony Podesta's, which the address shown is clearly fabricated. Although it is understandable many would want to have their privacy, this clearly meant an alternative location for a select few strangely in this invitation. It also specifies to donate and RSVP to PizzaPAC, which the website registered to a "JZ Drizden", however appears to be for the actual Pizza Packet business.

Pizza Packet is owned by Itchie Gross who we know through his spouse Jane Gross maintains regular contact with the Podesta's, mainly referencing trips to Hawaii. The Pizza Packet is a legitimate business selling only pizza seasoning for restaurants. For whatever reason, it's public information it voluntarily chooses to display remains silent on its operational location, but through its only possible contact address will direct to a post office in Boca, Raton Florida (not far from Jeffrey Epstein's residence). We also know that Gross had used a profile picture on Linkedin with a Boeing 727 plane although it was unclear whether it was Lolita Express but the winglet appears to match.

This email sent to John Podesta comes from James Alefantis, chef and restaurateur of Comet Ping Pong which we know has been a popular venue for various Democrats since as early as 2008. Alefantis was also ranked by GQ magazine in 2012 as one of the top 50 most powerful individuals in Washington DC, who also possesses ownership in Buck's Fishing & Camping (next door to Comet Ping Pong) and also an art gallery in Logan Circle, DC and previously in Virginia. He also has previously dated David Brock, who is connected with watchdog Media Matters for America, which is known for its aggressive propaganda approach. So what else is special about the Chevy Chase neighbourhood restaurant of Comet Ping Pong exactly? Well it’s a legitimate pizzeria that is rated 4-stars on Yelp and has been praised on Food Network's Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives with Guy Fieri, the restaurant also has actual ping pong tables too.

Inside the actual restaurant also displays artwork murals which appear to be possibly hipster heavy prints:

Comet Ping Pong which titles itself ‘family friendly’ is also known as a prominent concert venue which has hosted events for a supposed “all ages” audience. Here we see that the band Sex Stains have performed at the restaurant which surprisingly, you can check for any subliminal messaging in their Land of La LA music video:

The first image below appears to be a depiction of either a blow job or based on the body shape, oral sex to promote the local rock band Heavy Breathing. Second image shows fangs and blood coming from a leather chair while the third image presents multiple symbols. Looking at music videos by Heavy Breathing and Sex Stains, appears to be using alot of visuals that would trigger an epileptic seizure but appear to also exhibit “mind controlling themes” and less of activating a harmonious mental state. But art is subjective and whatever pleases everyone..

For the rock band Heavy Breathing, we know that several of their songs have satirised dark humour about ritualistic killing of children, molestation and other sexually abusive hints. In a recorded footage at one of their performances, we see that keyboardist Amanda Kleinmen is quick to mention convicted pedophile Jared Fogle “used to come down here” and positively praised that “Well, we all have our preferences”. Presumably the easy banter about pedophila and sexual abuse suggest that they themselves may have even become easily desensitized or it’s an inside joke. Although in their defense, they may have pressured against trying to make any critical or hostile remarks about Jared Fogle at a performance but yet they clearly introduced the topic.

CYCLISTANONS

(Source: Majestic Ape aka Amanda Kleinman also appears to make very disturbing and odd themed videos to promote the Heavy Breathing band. This is some of the examples that personally my stomach couldn't keep up with the rest and this is "art", with most of them being very subliminal with pictures including of pizza and other similar food symbols, rape, torture and images of Chinese law enforcement abuse. All of this is being promoted as suitable for all age famly friendly events)

Alefantis also privately owns a museum in the Columbia Heights neighbourhood within Washington DC being the "Pegasus Museum" which isn't open to the general public. It is described to have specialised in exhibiting "live art" and based on public records, ownership is held by Castellum Achilles LLC, which was registered to James Alefantis in June of 2014. What makes it odd is that Alefantis is publicly able to boast about his holdings in the restaurant industry, but has not mentioned his ownership in a private museum. It was also alleged that Alefantis has threatened people who have attempted to gain insight into the museum, however it is possible this is due to being ashamed of the museum failing to rise to prominence as common with many influencers in Washington DC. The size of the building appears to feature a garage and appears to be two stories tall.

On the Comet Ping Pong’s official website hidden in the deep web, we see that it has used a very hidden and secure password protected site that has not been indexed meaning it was clearly intended to be invisible in a sense against search engine crawlers. This website was discovered and later hacked and leaked online by an unknown party. The blurred text translates as:

Last month’s satisfied customers were raving about our “pizza” and we know you will too! Repeat customers know the drill. For newcummers, first run the program given to you by your special friend and all instructions on how to enjoy this joyous hobby will be easily understandable. But please, remember the penalties for breaking the rules, which are also included in the program. Very few have broken the rules, and needless to say the penalties are harsh. - The app is to be run from your own personal computer that only you have access
- Your computer must be connected to the Internet when run
- The app must be run from your home
- You must destroy the media on which you received the app
- Remember the password that will activate the app as there will be no icons on your computer

The attached images show photos of actual pizzas which for $1,000 would roughly make them some of the most expensive pizzas being sold probably in Washington D.C. Seemingly, by looking it at alone it appears to be some very shifty underground black market for 'pizza'. To also describe 'surviving pizzas last month' would clearly be some sort of health code violation, as leftover pizza after one month would very clearly cause food poisoning due to the bacteria accumulated. Looking at official food inspection data done by the District of Columbia around the time of this, there was no violation regarding the sale of outdated pizzas.

On the 4th December 2016, Edgar Maddison Welch, a man from Salisbury, North Carolina would travel to Washington DC armed with a semi-automatic rifle to fire three rounds in the building. Nobody was injured, but the gunmen would claim to have been self-investigating the restaurant based on the Pizzagate conspiracy theory. For opinion the act was clearly a stupid decision, and it wasn't surprising that an indictment would be submitted by the FBI for imprisonment. We know the shooter's history also involved a small-time acting career for indie films, including:

One the listed date time and location, RP-1 states he observed S-1 inside the Comet restaruant and point a rifle at his direction. RP-1 then fled towards the rear of restaurant and exited the building. RP-1 then called 911. MPD officers responded to the scene. Sgt. Aleminan (2020), Sgt. Firehock (2040) and Lt. Merrill (cruiser 200) also responded to the scene. A Barricade was declared by the acting officials on the scene at 1615 hours. S-1 then exited the Comet restaurant with his hands up and was instructed to walk towards the officers with his hands up. S-1 complied and was then handcuffed, placed under arrest and transported to the Second District for processing.

ERT, CIRV#867, EOD #3, K-9 #26, K-9 56 unit responded to the scene.

(MPD Police report regarding the criminal case of Edgar Maddison Welch, which apparently if someone intends to investigate a restaurant, they would somehow destroy a computer tower which would be critical for evidence. As a computer tower hard-drive remains the only available source of files assuming it is not backed by cloud-storage, then basically all the contents on that drive are permanently eliminated)

The restaurant and those neighbouring had been apparently subject to harassment, but on the 25th January 2017, an arson attack that employees were able to extinguish, would later occur on the same day that the traffic cameras outside Comet Ping Pong were being adjusted. Now this could have been a pure coincidence or either pre-planned, but it occurred on the morning of the attempted arson. Coincidentally, the same traffic camera was also repositioned the same day on the 4th December 2016 for no reported reason.

However it appears that children possibly aged 6 to 10 years old are possibly spending the night at a pizza restaurant, or presumably with most pre-teens there could be a 'sleepover party tour' that exceeds outside the boundaries of a bedroom) We also know that Comet Ping Pong has a 'kids' party room' section within the restaurant that acts as a function venue.

(Source: A YouTube video from 2007 posted outside Comet Ping Pong is filmed but rather focusing on table tennis being played on the pedestrian sidewalk. In the audio background, you can hear echoing screams from what appears to be a young girl below the age of 13. A group of pedestrians who attempt to investigate are quickly dismissed and removed by the table tennis onlookers. This video was initially conducted by a Washington Neighborhood Commissioner to investigate "threat to public safety of an outdoor ping-pong table outside on the sidewalk. At the same time, the commissioner addressed a meeting at the Advisory Neighborhood Commission that the area was becoming a "quiet stretch of Connecticut Avenue in Forest Hills into a haven for rape and murder". This however was rather regarding the context of "Safety. James is trying to turn this into Adams Morgan, with the murders, the rapes.". Adams Morgan is another Washington DC neighborhood known for its nightlife, which concern surrounding having Comet Ping Pong (in an area described as quiet) operate all night while continuing to exercise the sale of liquor and outdoor events. It was suggested that if the pizzeria were to operate in this manner, it could spark a rise in criminal activity including rape or murder.)

- We have also considered the possibility of the hashtag #carisjames referencing the Caribbean Island of Little Saint James, which is the property title within the US Virgin Islands owned by Jeffrey Epstein. It has also been reported that Epstein had planned to impregnate multiple women at his New Mexico Ranch to conduct what would be an underground human breeding farm.

The following images are from Alefantis' instagram account in no particular order, some disturbing but also take note of the comments and hashtags. We can analyse each one further in detail:

First we see his last two profile pictures are of Antinous (est 113AD-130AD) ,who was a favourite underage 'boy lover' to the Emperor of Rome Hardian. At age 18 whilst among the Nile River, Antinous was ritualistically sacrificed by drowning which after he was deified through a cult like worship towards him additionally having a city of Antinoöpolis in Egypt honoured towards him. So we know that there is interest in the Ancient Greek teenager who between the ages of 13-18 engaged in sexual relations with a middle aged Roman Emperor.

Dear James:
Thank you for lending your time and extraordinary talent to participate in the "Cooking with Fratelli Podesta" fundraiser for my campaign for president hosted by Tony and John Podesta. I heard the evening was a smashing success, and am grateful to you for everything you did to make it possible.
I'm running for president because everyday Americans and their families need a champion, and I want to be that champion. I want to help all people fulfill their potential and not only get ahead, but stay ahead. I am energized by the support and good wishes I have received on the trail, and am looking forward to continuing the conversation about our future and to building an inclusive, nationwide grassroots campaign that will earn every vote to victory.
Thank you for standing with me in this fight, and please know that I am cheering you on for continued success. Onward!

Here the first exhibit at @jimmycomet shows a letter to Alefantis from Hillary Clinton expressing gratitude for participating in a fundraiser hosted by the Podesta brothers for the 2016 electoral campaign. We know that according to Clinton's emails that the event took place on October 6th 2015 between 6:30-8:30pm at Tony Podesta's residence, where about 90 attendees were invited each expected to pay either perk tiers of $500, $1000 for entry while $2,700 for a 'Chef's Circle Reception'. It was also a strictly no press permitted event with guests ranging from James Alefantis, Amy Brandwein, Massimo Fabbri and Dorothy McAuliffe. Overall seems like a genuine fundraising event but we know the level of connections that Alefantis has, despite claiming in numerous interviews "he has never met Hillary Clinton" even though it is evident the two have been in the same proximity and even been told "continuing the conversation".

Mysterious map drawn on whiteboard and posted on @jimmycomet which appears to be some sort of farm. We know that "Tom's Creek" appears in an unincorporated community in Virginia with a creek along its road, however upon observation there are no properties along it that match this description as outlined in the Instagram post. Another scan towards the Maryland's Toms Creek which is a tributary of the Monocacy River also fails to find a matching property. However, we do know one possible place that is actually aligned with Tom's Creek in Maryland and it just appears to be a supplier of Comet Ping Pong. Also, surprisingly:

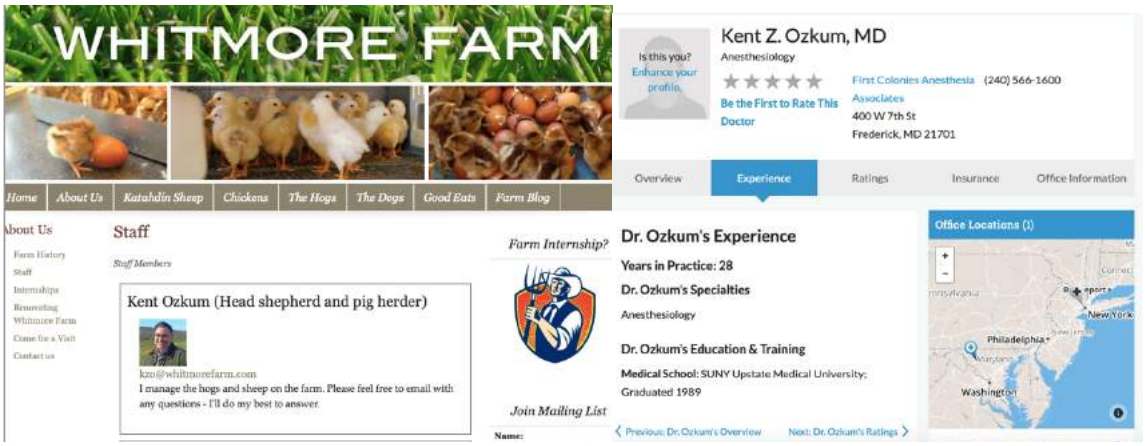
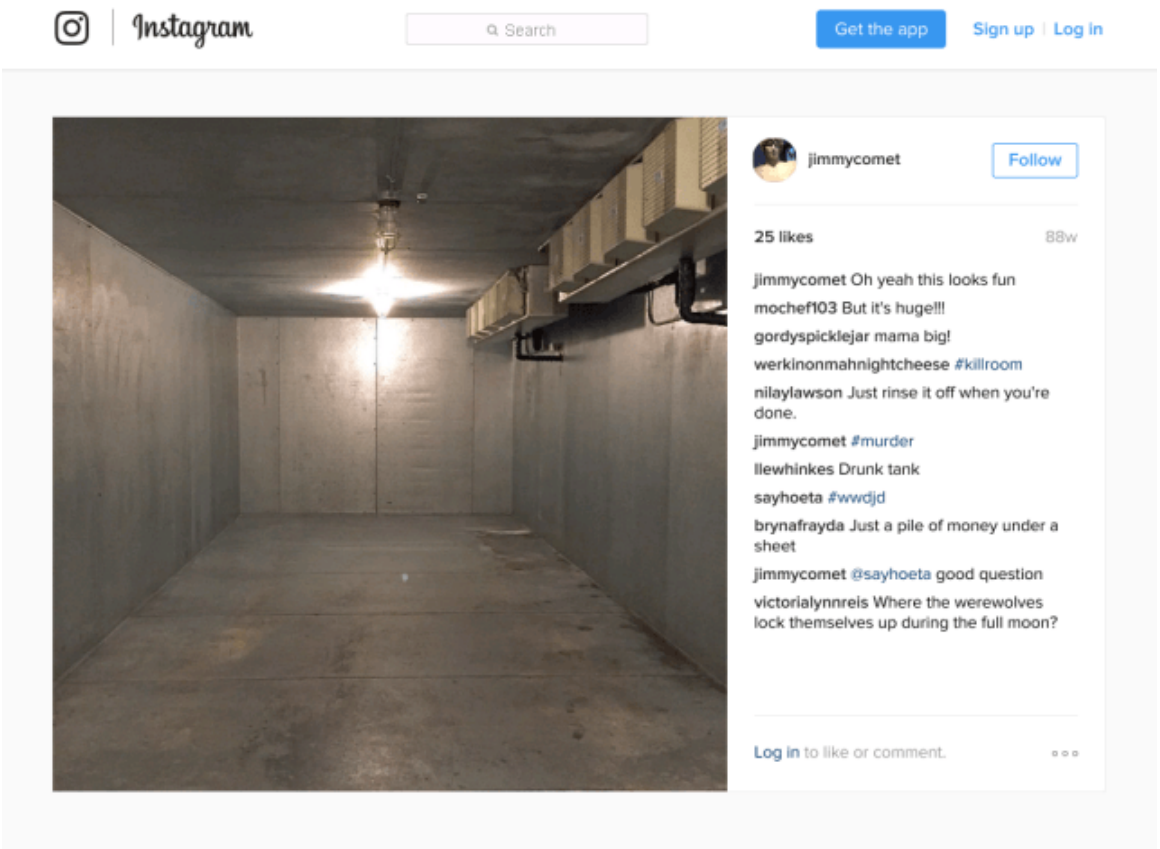
(Source: Searching further on the Whitmore Farm especially any links made around the time of the Instagram post, there's an article by New York Social Diary that toured the farm. It appears in one of their touring images, the exact diagram illustrated appears in the background on the whiteboard)

CYCLISTANONS



The head owner of Whitmore Farm appears to be Kent Ozkum who also appears to be possibly the accredited anaesthesiologist doctor. This possibility is heavily supported by the fact that the name Kent Z. Ozkum appears to very rare in the United States, and that Dr Kent Ozkum previously practiced in Fredrick, Maryland. Whitmore Farm is approximately less than a 20-minute drive from the office listed for Dr Kent Ozkum and the individual is no longer practicing. If correct, then this would mean that he is qualified and able to perform anesthetics. It is clarified according to this article that Kent Ozkum was indeed a former doctor and confirmed that he had retailed at farmers markets in Fredrick over the long-term.



This image posted by @jimmycommet shows what appears to be a underground tunnel or some commercial walk-in refrigerator at Comet Ping Pong or an affiliated restaurant. It appears that this may possibly be the first encounter Alefantis had with this walk-in-refrigerator, given the emptiness and quoting “oh yeah this looks fun” which usually would imply the first time they are amazed by the sight. There is never any clear reason described why a refrigerator would be of any excitement other than what could assume as having extra storage space.

In the comments section, one user @werkinonmahnightcheese uses the hashtag #killroom, while @nilaylawson comments “Just rinse it off when you’re done” . This one is most strange as it is very vague on what activities you could complete temporarily in a walk-in-refrigerator other than storage. You might recommend general maintenance and cleaning but there is no explanation on what could be explicitly and precisely “done” in a place where you store food products. @Jimmycomet uses the hashtag #murder alone without any reply to anyone in the comments nor any further details on what sense is being used.

(Instagram pictures from Jeff Smith @werkinonmahnightcheeseshowing who commented #killroom on Alefantis' and remains heavily connected. Smith is also an ongoing contractor for Comet Ping Pong and also leases what has been described as a "killroom" at Pajama Factory in Williamsport, Pennsylvania. Two deaths between 2010-2020 have occurred at Pajama Factory, first being the discovery of a dead body of 21 year old Regina Lapp found on a bed of a second-floor studio. Another appears to be a homicide in 2016 that occurred against 27 year old Basil Hill by gunshot. It appears both deaths occurred roughly around similar times, with both occurring late at night around 1-3am with 'mysterious circumstances'. According to the Williamsport Bureau of Fires and the City Code Administrator, the Pajama Factory as a commercial zone was clearly forbidden from being used for overnight stays yet inspectors still found bedroom furniture and accessories still appearing in the building. It had been an ongoing complaint for some time, while the only person who is authorised to access the premise at night was a security employee)

Previously, Alefantis was also accused by a DC Advisory Neighbourhood Comission member of encouraging murder and rape in the past via his opening hours. @Sayhoeta uses the hashtag #wwdjd which supposedly appears to reference an abstract artist Donald Judd 'What would Donald Judd Do' with Alefantis replying "good question". We also see that @victorialynnreis states that "Where the werewolves lock themselves up during the full moon" which again with the context of a refrigerator they seem to be very desensitised and exposed to the idea as a normal inside joke.

A walk-in-refrigerator could work either way underground or in-ground but would need a temperature sensor to be connected to a condensing unit external from the evaporator, as part of filtering against the heat which usually this is placed outside in a well-ventilated area. It is yet to be verified on the status of a basement or given the contradicting consistency offered by Alefantis in previous interviews.

The most likely model of the refrigerator appearing based on its size seems to match 11'7" x 19'3" x 8'2" walk-in refrigerator or cooler or possibly a 14' x 18'3" x 9'4"H KPS Walk-in Cooler. A reason that possibly supports this prediction is that Whitmore Farm also appears to have this model at their farm.

James Alefantis: From Scratch

With two community-centric restaurants and support of various causes, James Alefantis is committed to the common good ALEFANTIS: Well, we make everything from scratch. Other restaurants, even good restaurants, will, like, not roast their own peppers. You can just buy the roasted peppers in a can. Or you can buy garlic oil. Some products you can get, and they're consistent and they're easy. But I didn't even know that existed actually until they said that. I was like, "What do you mean? There's another way? You can just buy these things?" Because a lot of restaurants will open a can and put it on. Like our sauce — we harvest a whole crop of organic tomatoes — 10 tons of tomatoes every year. Can them all, store them in the basement, have like a harvest party when it gets loaded in.

The conspiracy theory bubbled up from 4chan onto the mainstream internet when a Reddit user posted a long document with all of the "evidence" several days before the US election. It

We do know some time around 2014-2016 that a project for construction was occurring at one of Alefantis' commercial properties (likely Comet Ping Pong restaurant) to what in this image appears to be excavation inside a brick warehouse like room (might be Pegasus Museum).

Given the texture of the grunge brick wall and what appears to be remaining coating left after likely stripping the paint, we can assume this could be the same room as the picture above. It is still unknown on the purposes behind commencing this construction project in the first place.

Based on this, we know that in the District of Columbia that businesses wishing to engage in such construction will require a permit issued by the DC Department of Consumer and Regulatory Affairs. Having a building permit means that it would be authorised in accordance with a specific set of approved work plans, allowing actions such as new construction and renovations in a commercial building. Some activities such as installation of new windows, plumbing or painting usually would not require any permit, all work exempted from a permit can be found under the Section 105.2 of the District of Columbia Building Code 2013.

The following are the DC Construction Codes that were in force BEFORE 2017 and AFTER 2013:

CYCLISTANONS

106.2 Site Plan. The applicant shall provide a site plan, whenever the application for permit involves any of the following:

1. Erection of a new building or other structure.
2. Addition to an existing building.
3. Permanent construction outside the footprint of existing buildings.
4. Construction or alteration of projections into public space.
5. Erection of retaining walls.
6. Excavation or grading work disturbing earth in an area in excess of the limits set forth in 21 DCMR § 527, Storm Water Management: Exemptions.
7. Demolition or razing of existing structures or buildings.
8. Installation or replacement of underground utility service connections.
9. Installation or replacement of site drainage systems.
10. Path of the exit discharge to the public way.
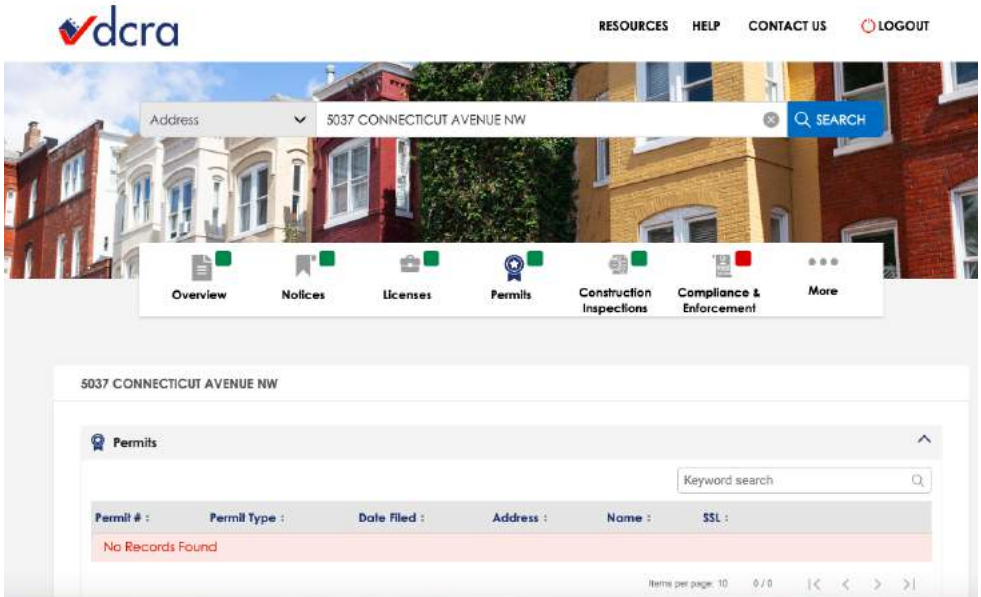
11. Construction in whole or in part in a Special Flood Hazard Area as established in Section 1612.3 of the Building Code.

(The District of Columbia Building Code (2013), referred to as the "Building Code," consists of the 2012 edition of the International Building Code as amended by the District of Columbia Building Code Supplement (2013)(12 DCMR A).)

Examining on the activities depicted within the building on the instagram photos, we can assume that there was some extensive level of installation, renovation or building erection requiring approval by a building surveyor. We can cross-reference if any permits have been registered to Comet Ping Pong through the District of Columbia's consolidated data systems.



According to official records possessed by the District of Columbia, Comet Ping Pong has never been issued any permit for their construction project. We will have to assume that the works as illustrated in the instagram post were conducted either at another location, or that the activities were carried out secretly without any form of legal authorization. If the project was conducted illegally, then not only is it a safety hazard but also suggests greater concealment of the actual building.

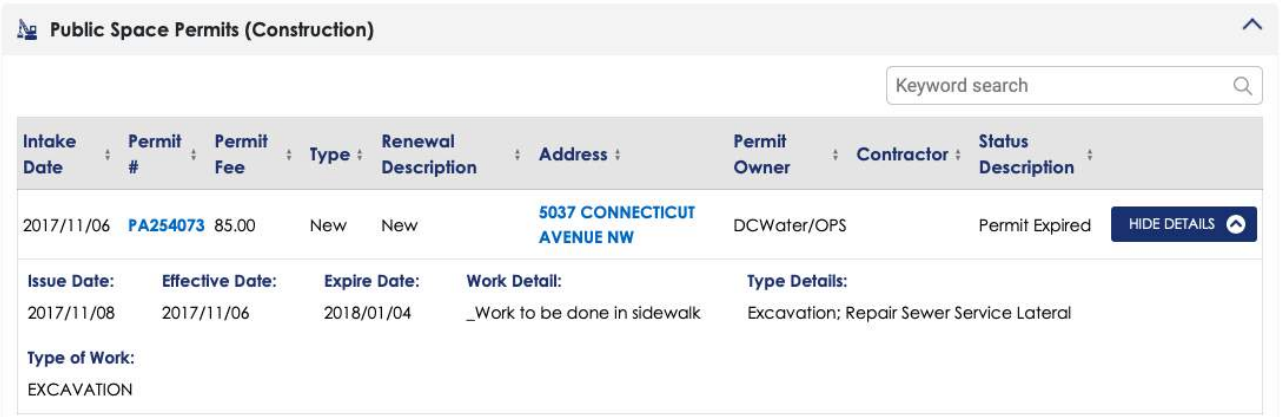
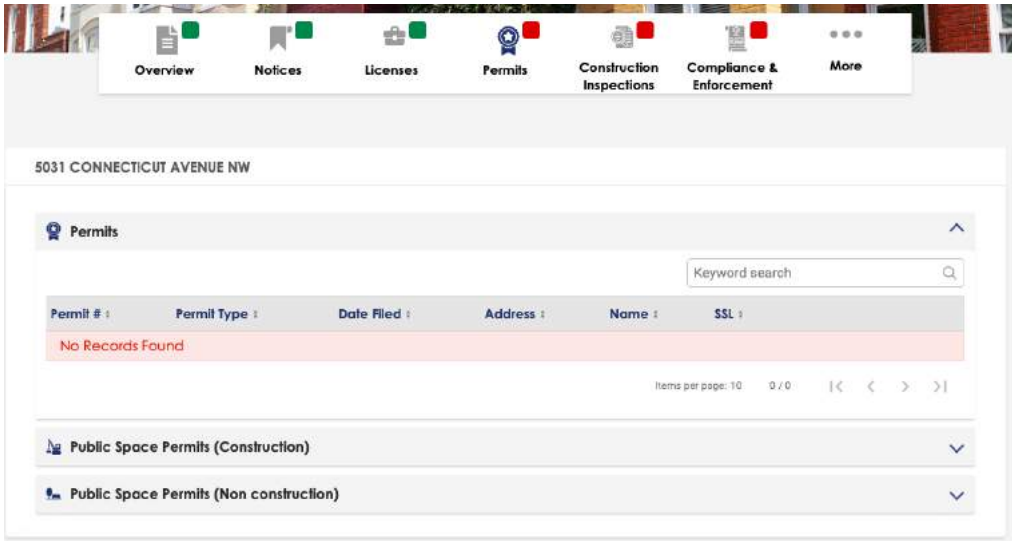
The only form of permit that has been issued to the restaurant was an excavation project that was carried out on the public sidewalk in 2017.



Chances are the construction wasn't even done at Comet Ping Pong so alternatively we can look at Buck's Fishing & Camping, which is also owned by Alefantis. Again no permits were issued:



Despite both restaurants having the same owner, it's registration is done through two different shell companies separately having been incorporated to possess the restaurants.

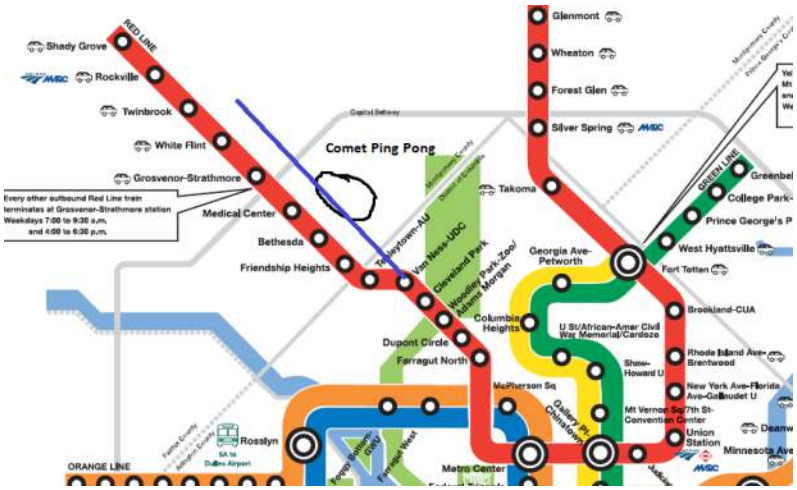
Another thing we do know is that the restaurants owned by Alefantis have been held in his ownership since 2003 and 2005, which also underground are within range to the Washington Metro Red Line subway tunnels. The DuPoint Underground was previously constructed along Connecticut Avenue back in 1949 before being abandoned for food courts and later an art gallery. If the DuPoint Underground was to commence as an operational subway line either from DuPoint Circle Station or Van-Ness acting as an transport interchange, then trains would function directly underneath Comet Ping Pong.



(Illustration of the abandoned subway tunnels which have been marked in blue within the Washington Metro Map going up Connecticut Avenue)

CYCLISTANONS

The DuPoint tunnels that span an estimated 75,000 square feet of space underground have had vacant spaces for some time and were once used as a fallout shelter during the Cold War. Other than subway trains, it is also factual that many other tunnels exist underneath Washington D.C some spanning back to the 1776 Revolutionary War while more notable modern examples including catacombs, US Capitol Subway, White House tunnels and then likely just any sewage, wiring, electrical facilities etc. Although even the abandoned tunnels would likely still be enclosed with heavy bedrock, framed with possibly shotcrete and sprayable concrete, it is possible if they dug deep enough from Comet Ping Pong that there would be an air-split passage between.

Tunnel-DIGGING as a HOBBY

ONE of the oddest hobbies in the world is that of Dr. H. G. Dyar, international authority on moths and butterflies of the Smithsonian Institution, who has found health and recreation in digging an amazing series of tunnels beneath his Washington home.

Almost a quarter of a mile of tunnels has been completed, lined with concrete. The deepest passage, illustrated in the accompanying diagram, extends 35 feet down. Every bit of earth was removed unaided by Dr. Dyar, being carried out in pails. He found the tunnel-digging an appealing form of exercise to relieve the intense strain of his work day, which involved much close work with high-power microscopes.

The catacombs are constructed in three levels, with steps and iron pipe ladders leading between different tiers. The idea first came to Dr. Dyar when he sought to make an underground entrance to his furnace cellar.

Diagram above gives layout of Dr. Dyar's tunnels. Photo in upper left corner shows explorer descending iron pipe ladder, to picture at left, and is pointing out the tunnel ladder's signature, imprinted in the concrete with which all the tunnel walls are lined.

110 Modern Mechanics and

(Smithsonian Magazine The Bizarre Tale of the Tunnels, Trysts and Taxa of a Smithsonian Entomologist)

Back in 1914, entomologist Harrison Grey Dyar Jr and his son while living in Washington DC within range of where the future DuPoint tunnels would be placed started digging tunnels. Dyar Jr was initially studying bugs but 10 years later, a truck driving by 21st and P Street North-West drove down into the labyrinth for what was discovered as an elaborate multi-level tunnel network. According to Dyar Jr, the tunnel digging in his backyard was done as a pastime hobby which was sealed with relevant supporting infrastructure, to which he described it as a "source of relaxation and exercise". It appeared to have extended hundreds of feet, measuring six-by-six. One of the arch engravings in the tunnel's entrance also used a Virgil motto "Facilis Descensus Averno" meaning the way down to the lower world, which references Averno as a metonym for the underworld.

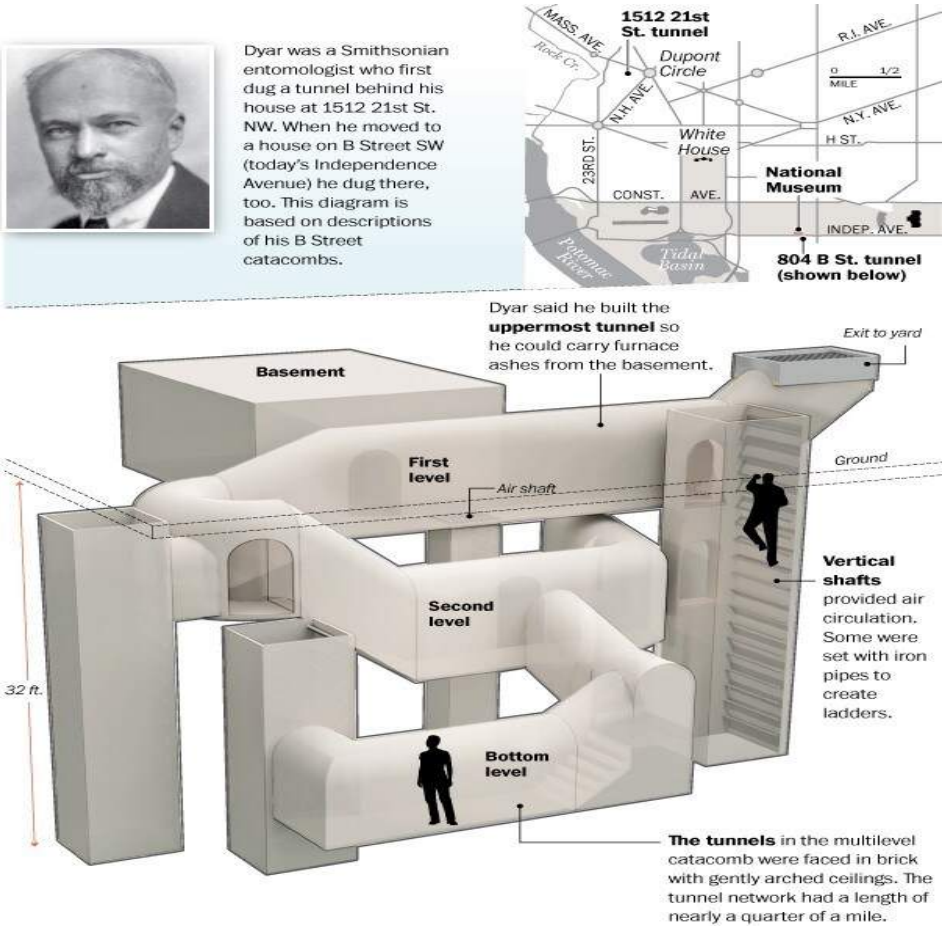
Eventually these giant catacombs were sealed up but later converted for the use of underground subway rails which stretched for miles underneath Washington DC. In fact it was one of the first tunnels to be renovated for that exact purpose when the Red Line was opening in the 1970s.



Dyar was a Smithsonian entomologist who first dug a tunnel behind his house at 1512 21st St. NW. When he moved to a house on B Street SW (today's Independence Avenue) he dug there, too. This diagram is based on descriptions of his B Street catacombs.

- One fact is that across the United States and within the District of Columbia, extensive efforts in both public and private initiatives to construct underground networks with many being decommissioned (some not publicly revealed for "national security reasons"). Back during the Eisenhower presidency in 1958, an executive order was made to establish a continuity of government plan to ensure the federal government could sustain during a disaster (at the time, nuclear war was the major concern). To do this, multiple state-of the art underground facilities were constructed both for civilian and military usage. Examples can include the White House's bunker, Mount Weather Emergency Operations Centre, Raven Rock Mountain Complex and Project Greek Island. President John F Kennedy was recommended before his assassination to construct a 3,000-4,000 deep underground facility for the 1965 fiscal year within proximity to the Pentagon Washington although this never go to proceed. Remaining confidential for two years following 9/11, the US Continuity of Government emergency protocols were activated for the day of the attacks. During this period on the day of September 11th, the executive branch including the respective government agencies were ordered to relocate to a bunker either in their city (Washington DC), Mount Weather or another undisclosed area and continue their basic functions.

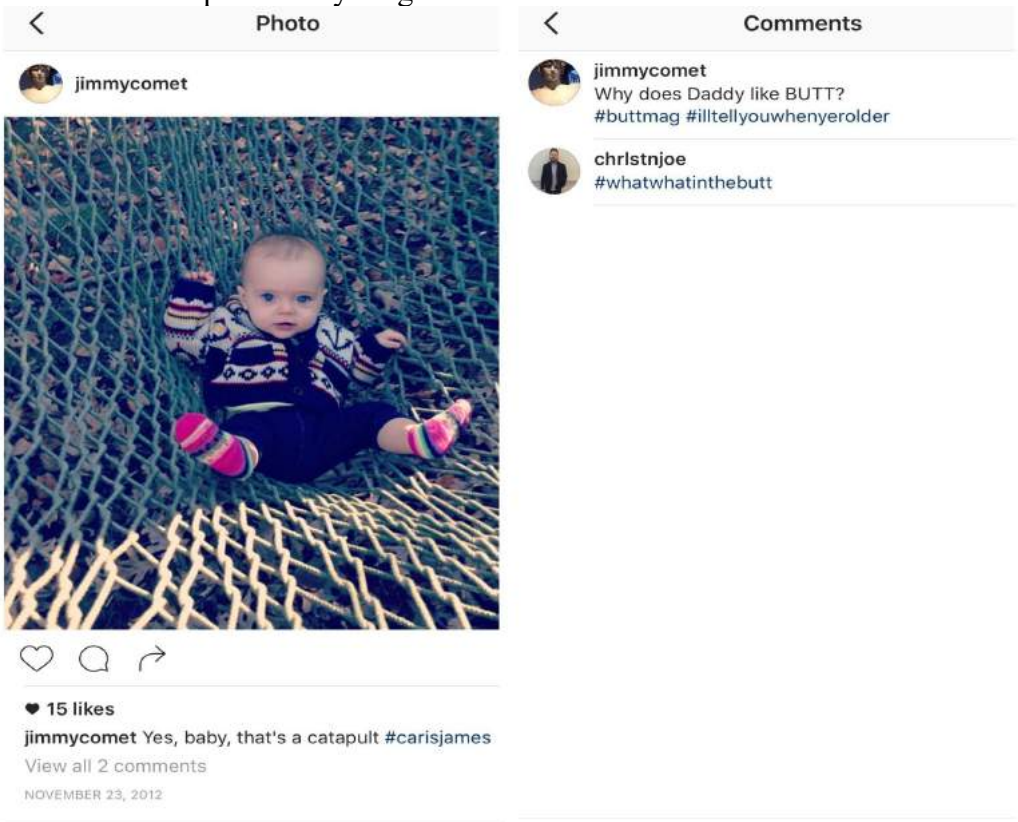
This post itself without any captions or background details into the image was made by @jimmycomet which photographs a child possibly aged young as 3-5 duct taped to a wooden table. According to an interview, Alefantis claims that the girl in the image is his goddaughter in which he described this particular image as simply playful and normal for children. Other behaviour involving his goddaughter and other children on his account also are alarming, which he reillerates “it’s a cute photo of them just playing together” and that “there are worse things on social media”.

The same goddaughter was posted again later on pizzabrains tumblr but instead Alefantis shows her wearing a t-shirt with a parodied logo of Pizza Hut labelled “Pizza Slut”. It appears as another image posted by @jimmycomet appearing to be advancing themes of more sexual innuendos about pizza and young children.



(Note that also being openly homosexual, Alefantis is not personally a parent nor having any official history of adoption. Most of the images feature various children on his posts containing strange quotes or nature, with this one referencing adult entertainment such as Butt Magazine. It is unclear why a quarterly magazine catering to adult gay men would be used to describe a photo of an infant on a hammock.

Here @jimmycomet posts an image of an infant chewing on sealed stacks of Euro banknotes, which assuming each shown in the image was $1000 USD each would be converted to roughly around €4,200 at the time. It feels uneasy and unsafe for an infant child to be huddled with thousands of Euro banknotes posing for a photo that would be shared, not to mention the risk of money harboring germs from excessive touching. Alefantis himself claimed that the photo of the infant with Euro notes along her mouth was also a play on a Jay-Z reference (possibly Jay-Z's song Blue Magic) and that he was going to Europe himself.

CYCLISTANONS

This photo by @jimmycomet shows an infant child who appears to be distressed and tired whilst resting next to a sign quoting “German Baby $1200.00 Please Do Not Touch!”. Strangely even if it was done with comedic intentions, Alefantis appears to comment that it was “way overpriced” which suggests prior knowledge for the value associated with trafficking infants. Even so, the amount of detailed preparation to make this post, including having a precise price tag next to the infant sets off red flags for a more sinister outlook. It is not everyday that someone will know the black market price range for babies let alone an exact value to be used as a joke.

The image posted at @jimmycomet appears to be at the L’Enfant Cafe & Bar in Washington DC. The text on the T-Shirt quotes a phrase in French ‘J'aime les enfants’ which translates to “I love children”.

On a whim, Eve, a young Swedish traveler, accepts an invitation from Peter to vacation on his family's private island off the coast of New England. As a series of unexpected delays prevent other guests from arriving, Eve discovers that she has little in common with the increasingly erratic Peter. Gradually the idyllic natural beauty of the island gives way and Eve finds herself trapped in a state of surreality punctuated by bizarre visions, dimensional shifting and secret pizza.

The plot of the movie is about a young traveler who travels to a private island off the coast of New England and loses grip of reality and of course there’s a “secret pizza” involved. This could have been an allegory for Jeffrey Epstein’s island although that one is located in the US Virgin Islands.

@Jimmycomet posts what appears to be three individuals (possibly children/young adults) kneeling while wearing theatre drama masks, one halter dress, a sun-dress and some sort of gown. This appears to be some very cultist-like ritual ceremony that is taking place which seems to mirror the elements in Stanley Kubrick's "Eyes Wide Shut" 1999 film. Another possible similarity seems to be from the Thelema teachings by occultist Aleister Crowley.

Here in this photo we see that @jimmycomet has posted an image from the Podesta art collection:

CYCLISTANONS

This particular artwork that is displayed at the residence of Tony Podesta is featured for the front cover of Home Life magazine, showing a sculptural Art of Hysteria display that was made by Louise Bourgeois. It was last sold for approximately $5,617,300 USD out of six limited edition models. Showing a bronze and polished patina figure rested on a pose and headless, we see that the muscles and the pose have been taunted uncomfortably. The curved frames are supposedly representative of Jean-Martin Charcot's Salpêtrière who was known for having his patients to arrange in concentric arcs with their body. Apparently, this was done to research hysteria where it tried to prove differentiation between physical and mental pain. The 'Art of Hysteria' also appears to mimic serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer who was known for capturing polaroid photos of is victims, which involved after committing murder to put them in strange poses suggesting interests as a contortionist.

(Image on the left is a real image provided from Wisconsin Police Department during the investigation of Jeffrey Dahmer, who was later convicted of the murder of 17 people. It was discovered that Dahmer had stored and even placed his victims in poses for personal sexual pleasure)

Here's another example of an art exhibit held by the Podesta's:

This image appears to represent the folklore of Krampus who according to Central European stories, is an anthropomorphic figure that is half-demon and half goat. The children in the cages are related to the Christmas part of the lore, which contrasts someone like Saint Nicholas to kidnap and punish children who have misbehaved.

The Podesta's also have 'The Welcome Guest' to which we see a mutant figure leering over a young girl with what appears to be giant claws. With this artist, Tony Podesta describes the contemporary visual artist Patricia Piccinini who produced this in 2011 as his "favourite". Now a Melbourne Enterprise Professor of Visual Arts at Victorian College of the Arts, Picchinini has achieved works since the 90s mostly themed around 'biotechnology' and flesh like creatures with humanlike mutant features, she represented Australia with this at the 50th Venice Biennale in 2003.

One of the art pieces that is owned by John Podesta is also displayed in his New York office where the oil painting is next to a round meeting table. In the artwork, we see two men in suits who are hunched over someone on a dining table ready to engage in cannibalism. In an interview with Times Magazine, Podesta described it as "It's better to be the guy with the fork than the guy on the table", which shares similarities to the "Spirit Cooking" by Marina Abramovic we know Podesta has interest in.

Back to the large collection of artwork held by the Podesta brothers, let's have a glimpse at some of the example pieces. Some of the themes feature torture, child exploitation, dead bodies and sexual abuse:

One thing that we know about the Podesta Group, Clinton Foundation, Maria Abramovic, James Alefantis and many others in terms of art is their heavy participation and stake with the 'Art in Embassy' program. Through this public-private partnership, the organization is given access to a private shipping channel which could both bypass airport security and even allow the transport of live animals. Given that it involves the transport of fine art among diplomatic facilities, this could be done through diplomatic couriers protected under Article 27 of the 1961 Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations. Here it means that immunity against inspections or any other harassment can be provided for these shipments when being transported cross-borders. These exist for the purposes of helping facilitate communication especially if confidential between a state actor and its overseas missions, without risk of the host country interfering. Even the logistics staff are reassured against being aware of the contents of the cargo, as the Arts in Embassy program (also instructed to use abbreviations instead) have been able to conceal with coding and instructing that it labels as 'exhibition material' rather than 'Artwork'.

So how does this specifically work?

- Step 1: Claim you want to engage in more "cultural diplomacy" and will do so by shipping exhibits and maybe even live animals through various offshore embassies and consulates.
- Step 2: The cargo is consolidated through the US Department of State's Office of Logistics Management at different despatch agencies:
    - New York Agent: Deliveries to Europe, Middle East, Africa & South Asia
    - Miami Agent: Deliveries to Central America, South America & Caribbean
    - Brownsville Logistics Center: Deliveries to Mexico
    - Seattle Agent: Deliveries to Asia/Pacific Region
    - Baltimore Agent: Worldwide Shipment of Official Vehicles

(Any domestic deliveries from Washington DC can be done through the Springfield, Virginia warehouse which ship within the United States and sometimes overseas)

- Step 3: The respective US Despatch Agency will issue a Government bill of lading (GBL) for a diplomatic representative from the US Embassy to physically accompany the cargo directly to be stored into the aircraft

Currently the 21st century is witnessing the highest level of human displacement and smuggling through shipping containers. Not to mention that the high-risk illicit operation relies on sealed air-tight contained where people who are trapped can easily suffocate to death.

(Royal Thai Police seize a human trafficking ring inside a container filled with disturbing sights)

Consider the size of the supply chain and the two easiest ways for smuggling humans, done through minimal security and illegal immigration. When someone is willing to endorse the practice of keeping channels for illegal border-crossing, you know well they are capable of abusing their diplomatic privilege to repeat the same practice easily. Shipping routes and open borders are traditionally easier to transport living contents to places such as Little Saint James and Haiti compared to a plane. Very often shipping containers when going through international waters can evade any immediate oversight and possible transparency much easier. Sometimes a vessel might be registered to a country differentiating from the owner's citizenship, where they can be held to less stricter standards that would decrease the effective ability to be caught. Once they arrive at a destination, it is often very quick for a drayage truck to remove the 'cargo' from the port, or even from outside the port of entry. Dangers of this practice is that a 40 foot steel and soundproof shipping container is nearly impossible or difficult for victims to escape if something went wrong. In the United States and globally, coastal states such as California, Florida, New York and Texas have the highest rate of trafficking offences, all sharing common characteristics of being among national borders.

During the aftermath of the 2010 Haitian Earthquake, the Clinton Foundation led by former presidents Bill Clinton, George W Bush and then Secretary of State Hillary Clinton launched a relief campaign into the area. It managed to accumulate billions of dollars in donations for the budget, many from major philanthropic organizations that were said to eventually never reach the actual charity operations. In fact, out of a single donation of $500 million that was paid out to the foundation, only six functional houses were properly constructed with the rest as retained earnings or laundered through corporate entities. Some of the recovery funds were used to partially cancel the Haitian debt from multilateral intergovernmental financial organizations.

The false philanthropy continued and it wasn't until a few years later that it was discovered that donations had been diverted to the personal accounts of the Clinton's, most of which was paid for the million dollars worth wedding of Chelsea Clinton. For many in Haiti today, conditions still deteriorate with very little chance of economic prosperity. Around the same time where human trafficking had been rampant in Haiti, Laura Gayler-Silsby who had support from the Clintons, claimed to be a "Baptist missionary dedicated to rescuing and aiding impoverished children". During this time, Silsby and nine other associates were arrested for illegally crossing the border with up to 33 kidnapped children, to which the Clinton's later referred Jorge Puello to provide legal assistance to the 10 missionaries. Thanks to the Clinton's, about nine were immediately released with charges withdrawn. Hilary Clinton using her position of US Secretary of State was able to help reduce the charges for Silsby. What was strange is that the lawyer Puello, was currently under warrant by El Salavador for sex trafficking and the United States for smuggling people across the Canadian border.

Haitian government official Klaus Eberwein was also expected to testify against the Clinton Foundation in 2017, but a few days before was discovered to had committed suicide in a Florida hotel room. Monica Peterson who was conducting human trafficking studies in Haiti and for any possible Clinton Foundation links was tragically also found to have hanged herself. Although it is a fact that the Clintons are not directly liable in causing trafficking, they have conducted actions that have let it occur.

What to Say if a Friend Insists '800,000 Children Are Trafficked Each Year'

Child trafficking is a hot topic right now. But not, as social media might have you believe, because it's on the rise (it's not), or because the mainstream press is turning a blind eye to a growing problem (we aren't). Instead, a moral panic around child trafficking—exacerbated by the recent rise of the social justice Instagram aesthetic and by ultra-viral (and totally false) rumors that furniture company Wayfair sells kids via marked-up cabinets on its website—is blooming.

If someone you're close to has been posting about media cover-ups of child sex trafficking rings, sharing eyebrow-raising statistics, or suddenly expressing disproportionate outrage over the kids in Netflix programming, you might want to step in and say something. But because belief in this kind of misinformation isn't rooted in reality, how you approach this conversation—or, in actuality, this series of conversations—is key. ALLEGATIONS OF SEXUAL EXPLOITATION AND ABUSE IN THE ITURI REGION (BUNIA) IN THE UNITED NATIONS MISSION IN THE DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO (ID Case No. 0618/05)

I. INTRODUCTION

1. In January 2006, the Investigations Division of the Office of Internal Oversight Services (ID/OIOS) deployed investigators to Bunia, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC), to investigate allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse by peacekeepers deployed in the United Nations Mission in the DRC (MONUC).

2. During the course of its investigation, ID/OIOS received 217 allegations of sexual abuse and exploitation against a total of 75 peacekeepers. Only one allegation was substantiated because the girls who had initially made the allegations either refused to participate further or failed to identify the alleged perpetrators during lineups of the peacekeepers. This report is an overview of the ID/OIOS investigation and the problems it identified. Allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse against specific peacekeepers are addressed in the forty-eight reports on individual cases appended hereto.

II. BACKGROUND INFORMATION

(Example of one of the confidential reports from 2007 by the United Nations Office of Internal Oversight Services regarding 217 allegations of sexual exploitation and abuse during a UN Peacekeeping mission)

Through leaks and an independent investigation by Associated Press in 2017, it was revealed that 100 UN Peacekeeping officials ran a human trafficking network over 12 years. Over 2,000 allegations were also filled that sexual exploitation, child abuse and trafficking had occured under international law. Some reports estimate that this had occurred since the 90s or early 00s however no individuals were ever incarcerated.

In order to understand why they can't, we need to look at how the United Nations immunity works. Under international law in 1946, about 162 member states have ratified the Convention on the Privileges and Immunities of the United Nations and have implemented this into their domestic law. Like diplomats, the United Nations operates with immunities that allow them to function within their duties without possible hindrance from the receiving state. This can include being exempt from any tax, import prohibitions and that all it's officials are granted immunity from prosecution. Theoretically, it is not possible to file a lawsuit against the United Nations although instead it does operate internally through its own mechanisms to resolve disputes. If there are any damages to member states, the convention does provide a criteria for the United Nations to ascertain a source of compensation to the affected state. Even through an international judicial body, only a sovereign state can act as a plaintiff rather than private parties.

- ★ See the 2010 film based on a true story "The Whistleblower" produced by Voltage Pictures that gives insight into the corruption of DynCorp International and the UN.

During the late 90s, the private military company DynCorp was contracted with the United Nations to provide peacekeeping services in Bosnia that involved engaging over the local law enforcement. Two employees working on the joint operation discovered that both United Nations and DynCorp staff had been actively involved in a major sex trafficking ring. Accounts included victims being forced into prostitution, rape, torture, child absuse and even murdered. Although initial attempts were made by the two staff Kathryn Bolkov and Ben Johnson to report this internally, many efforts by high-level United Nations officials had attempted to cover this up. This ultimately led to their contracts terminated by the United Nations with many efforts being done to censor, bully and silence the whistleblowers from advancing further.

However, given that Bolkov was employed by DynCorp then this would enable a lawsuit to be filed for unlawful termination through the UK judicial system which led to further investigation. Following an external investigation by the FBI, while some locals in Bosnia were able to be prosecuted as they were not officially employed but anyone directly contracted with the United Nations was immune. So while the UN diplomats were technically guilty of acting upon the crime, they could not be prosecuted due to their guaranteed immunity under international law. But this doesn't mean that either DynCorp or the United Nations wouldn't take their own course of actions, as they officially forced the resignation of all employees involved. By 2003 in the US Federal Government, the Bush Administration offered to renew contracts with Dyncorp which the United Nations also repeated. Since then, about 3 billion which is about 96% of DynCorp's annual revenue comes from the US Federal Government.

- ★ Operation Flicker: Between 2006-2010, an investigation on Pentagon devices by the US Immigration and Customs Enforcement revealed that over 5,000 employees at the Department of Defence had used deep clearance to subscribe and possess child pornography

While there is yet to be any witnesses to come forward, it is known that the founder of Huffington Post and Breitbart was very critical against John Podesta well before any of his emails were leaked. On the 29th February 2012, Breitbart who did have hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, with focal coronary atherosclerosis, was found to have suffered a heart failure. later pronounced dead. It was also reported that he had suffered a heart attack in the previous months, which were recoverable.

According to the coroner and autopsy report, Breitbart was found by an unknown person who witnessed the death and suddenly fled the scene without a trace. It is unknown why an individual would suddenly dial 911 and abandon the scene, especially neglecting a possible life-threatening event that could be saved. No efforts of investigating the scene further were made.

Case Number: 2012-01471 Decedent: BREITBART, ANDREW JAMES

Information Sources:

1) LAFD RA #59 paramedic report #1238.
2) Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center report. 757 Westwood Plaza Los Angeles, Ca. 90095.
3)

Investigation:

On 03/01/2012, at 0552 hours, hospital personnel Carlton Daniels reported an apparent natural death. On 03/01/2012, at 0930 hours, I was assigned this hospital death by Lt. Dietz. I read the above listed reports and spoke with via telephone. No foul play is suspected. The decedent had a minor contusion on his forehead but no major trauma was noted.

Location:

The original incident occurred on the sidewalk located at 148 S. Barrington Ave. Los Angeles, CA. 90049. The decedent was transported to the above listed hospital via ambulance.

Informant/Witness Statements:

According to the paramedic report; on 02/29/2012, at 2336 hours, LAFD RA #59 received a 911 call of a man down at the location. The decedent was witnessed to collapse by an unknown person. Upon arrival, paramedics found the decedent not breathing. Paramedics administered four doses of Epinephrine and shocked him four times. The decedent was then transported to the hospital via ambulance.

According to the hospital report; on 03/01/2012, at about 0006 hours the decedent was presented into the ER via ambulance. The decedent was in full arrest with CPR in progress by paramedics. Despite all heroic efforts by hospital staff, Dr. J. Feldman pronounced death at 0019 hours.

On 03/01/2012, at about 1015 hours, I conducted a phone interview with , who related the following; approximately one year ago the decedent was presented into the same ER via ambulance due to shortness of breath. He was diagnosed with congestive heart failure. After a few days he was released for home. He began exercising and dieting. About two weeks ago he had the flu. Recently he had been under a lot of stress. He does not smoke and is considered a light drinker. When asked denied any drug abuse by her husband. No further information.

Scene Description:

Coroner personnel did not visit the scene.

Evidence:

No evidence was found or collected regarding this case.

Body Examination:

The decedent was a 43-year-old white male. He was observed supine on a steel table at FSC. He was a large and overweight male. No scars or tattoos were noted. He had been intubated. I noted hospital IV's in place. He had a hospital identification band on his left wrist. I noted a contusion on his forehead. No other trauma was noted.

TOXICOLOGY:

Blood, liver tissue, stomach contents, urine and vitreous humor have been submitted to the lab. A comprehensive screen was requested.

PHOTOGRAPHY:

Photographs have been taken prior to and during the course of the autopsy.

RADIOLOGY:

The body is fluoroscoped and 11 x-rays are taken of the head, chest and abdomen.

WITNESSES:

None.

DIAGRAMS USED:

Diagram Forms 20 and 30 were used during the performance of the autopsy. The diagrams are not intended to be facsimiles.

OPINION:

The cause of death is due to the effects of heart failure resulting from hypertrophic cardiomyopathy with focal coronary atherosclerosis. Microscopic examination revealed up to 60% narrowing of a major coronary vessel and "heart failure" cells in the lungs. Toxicology results are positive for 0.4 g% of ethanol. Minor head trauma is noted. The manner of death is natural Didn't think wet works meant pool parties at the Vineyard.

Wetwork
Wetwork is a euphemism for murder or assassination,

- One night prior to the death of Justice Antonin Scalia, a hunting and wildlife group that Scalia was associated with held a private pool party at the Cibolo Creek Ranch.

- County Judge Cinderela Guevara ruled that Scalia had died of natural causes based on the testimony of Presidio County Sheriff's Department and the US Marshall's. Early accounts stated that Scalia was found after failing to attend a group breakfast, and when discovered appeared to have a pillow over his face. No corpse was presented to the coroner nor any autopsy occurred (the family declined any autopsy), which under Texas law is not required in order to officially declare a death.

Remember what happened when President Reagan said

The following email as exactly typed to Mr Podesta was sent by who appears to be a Joe Patterson from Southern California. Receiving this email appears to be a detailed proposal for a "movie contract" which possibly never happens, as Podesta has no history as a film producer. This film is budgeted at $1.5 million and also happens to reference the historical 1848 Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo between the United States and Mexico, in which the US would pay Mexico $15 million for the Mexican Cession. One thing the treaty did was mark Rio Grande as the boundary between Mexico and the United States. This border would start from the twin cities of El Paso, Texas, and Ciudad Juárez, Chihuahua, to the Gulf of Mexico.

Try reading this email in the following manner by substituting:

- "Film" - Assassination
- "Script" – Method of Assassination or Proposed Media Narrative
- "Budget"- Payment to be made to hitman
- "Producer" – The hitman
- "Goal" – The contract killing
- "Tear Down This Wall" - Propagating the annexation of Mexico by removing a barrier obstacle (in this case the "obstacle" is a Supreme Court judge)
- "Isolated Ranch House: - Location of target
- "Underground tunnel" – Escape route

Presenting "INEZ COMES TO AMERICA"

The entire film is scored with a very up-beat Mariachi/Mexicana theme.

Below is the beginning of the final scene, but first, some set-up detail.

Most Americans (and for that matter, the entire rest of the world) have heard about our war with Mexico and -

The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo which in search of work and her missing mother.

Trained in the art of body language, he can see that she is very worried about her mother - they have not heard from her in weeks and her bank transfers have stopped.

Alex points to the moon and tells her, "Keep the moon on your right shoulder and you'll be ok."

Some days later, he can't seem to shake the image of this brave young woman and the danger she faces. He feels he could have,

If "Fahrenheit 911" could deliver $211 million on a budget of $6M, this film would be in demand to be screened in all of North and South American theaters and some pirated copies could even find there way into Russia and China.

I believe this important film is deserving of the services of a major producer, However, Ken Del Conte is an expert in producing low budget features.

He knows film people who will work for part of their compensation based on a box office bonus.

Ken penciled out a budget of $1.5 million.

Along with this email to Mr Podesta, a link from the Smithsonian directed to this map dating from 1840 North America, what is relevant however is the annotation line quoting “Claimed by Mexico and the Texas”. This tip on the 90-degree arrow line and the proposed setting for the film directly matches with the location of Cibolo Creek Ranch, where Justice Scalia happens to die of ‘natural causes’.

CYCLISTANONS

Strangely enough, the proposed "script" in the email also quotes specifically "leads them to an isolated ranch house with a massive underground tunnel at Tecate, Ca". The small city in Tecate, Baja California in Mexico is saturated on the US-Mexico Border and in recent times since the 90s, has been the subject of numerous tunnel discoveries designed for illegal activity. US Border Patrol have also made discoveries at Tecate including some 50 feet below ground tunnels that range 1,300 feet right into Mexico in the past.

Within a few hours of the death of Justice Scalia, Mr Podesta enters into email correspondents regarding “Scalia replacement” with Christopher Stone at the Open Society Foundations. Note this was sent BEFORE the body even left the original scene and no media press release had been provided yet. The first media report had however been made by a local newspaper San-Antonio Express-News at approximately 3:40pm central time, based on a tip that occurred two and a half hours earlier. This would mean that this information happened to be collected well before the death was even investigated and confirmed, and the theorized narrative just happened to be correct.

It has been theorised that this image could be a subtle allegory for the Ancient Egyptian Osiris myth. According to the cultist myth, Osiris was murdered by his usurper brother Set who mutilated 14 pieces of the body to be scattered across Egypt. His goddess wife Isis went to search for the pieces of Osiris to resurrect him but couldn’t find the last piece. It turns out it was eaten by a cursed fish in the Nile River, but the divine mother Isis known for helping peaceful transition for the dead into the afterlife, instead used solid gold to build Osiris' remaining body. He was then temporarily resurrected so they could conceive a child being the God of Kinship Horus. In Aleister Crowley's Thelemic sacraments, it is a symbol of resurrection as with the piece of Osiris is believed to have the power to give life to the underworld)

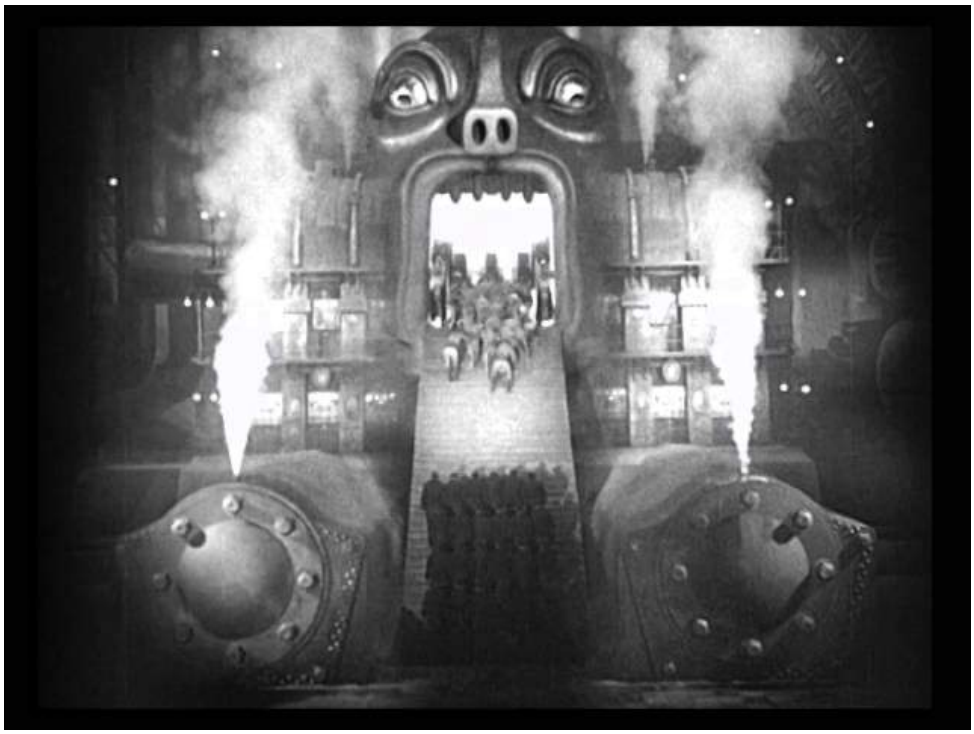
If we look back at another instagram picture from James Alefantis, we see he had received a gift from the Chef Alice Louise Waters which references "..Moloch Maschine My Dearest James". The "Maschine" could be a movie reference to the 1927 Metropolis, but what exactly is Moloch?



In the 1927 Sci-Fi/Drama film Metropolis, the son of the city master Freder hallucinates and discovers an underground satanic machine called Moloch of Child Sacrifices, and that all the workers are being ritualistically sacrificed towards. The machine in the film is biblically described as a "heart" that powers the city and leads to the death of many.

Just before speaking to me, Biehl had spoken with Arias who expressed cautious optimisim that we might have a break-through. Arias told Biehl to tell us, that if that happens the United States gets the credit.

Arias said the US has played the game exactly right, with the appropriate mix of carrots, sticks, toughness, unified message, even-handedness and, above all, good timing. Arias said the Europeans have been calling him over the past two days, and have fallen into line with the US; the Swedes, as head of the EU, and have told him that they will take their cue from the US and will support US actions. Arias, Biehl said, was extremely complimentary of the "great political instincts shown by Secretary Clinton."

With fingers crossed, the old rabbit's foot out of the box in the attic, I will be sacrificing a chicken in the backyard to Moloch . . .

Through the Clinton Emails, it is repeated again during a discussion with W. Lewis Amselem who was a former Senior Foreign Service Officer at the US Department of State during Hilary Clinton's tenure. It appears it is very popular among these group of people but basically 'Moloch' is the biblical figure from Ancient Canaanite religion which symbolizes child sacrifice.

LEFT: Johann Lund's Die Alten Jüdischen Heiligthümer (1711, 1738). RIGHT: Offering to Molech (illustration from the 1897 Bible Pictures and What They Teach Us by Charles Foster)

Back early as the Bronze Age for the Canaanites, it was believed that sacrificing which children were the highest level of value was a ritualistic practice that would bring them good luck. Ancient History is scattered with sacrifices so this also wasn't an unusual practice to come upon. In Biblical Hebrew, the name "Moloch" can be literally translated to mean a type of "King" but with child sacrifices and often appear as a minotaur or owl like statue figure. References to a "Cult of Moloch" have been made through Canonical Christian and Jewish scriptures most from eyewitness accounts such as from Josiah King of Judah who expressed various contempt. In fact through verses such as Leviticus 18:21, the Isrealites were given alarming warnings against Moloch which many religious scholars accept was an evil deity to be wary of. Using this demonic figure in popular culture, John Milton's Paradise Lost (1667) interpreted Moloch as the child sacrificing fallen angel (basically someone expelled from heaven) who as a devil's chief would give a speech from hell declaring war against God.

(Leaked Podesta Email from Sebrian performer and artist Marina Abramović)

Born on November 30th 1946 in Belgrade, Sebria, Mariana Abramović has been active for over four decades engaging in many "arts" such as performing, body, endurance and feminist arts. Referring to herself as the "grandmother of performing arts", she is also known for pioneering a new form of art focusing on "confronting pain, blood, and physical limits of the body". Her success has enabled thousands of dollar's worth of funding from the Clinton Foundation and attention from celebrities and politicians across the United States and world.

This might sound innocent which may or may not be true, but to explain what exactly Abramovic's feature "Spirit Cooking" is, it is a neo-thelemic ritual. This performing arts act is intended to "connect with spirits" through "aphrodisiac recipes" being the medium to connect with the material world. Based on what has been described from texts displayed at art galleries, thickly congealed pig blood is used to paint on the walls of the kitchen or if done with others an open space before making another recipe. You are then supposed to mix breast milk with fresh sperm and consume it with blood from your middle finger on "earthquake nights". There are many other stages which are depicted in her 'Marina Abramovic' - Spirit Cooking 1996' text which the original is displayed at the New York Museum of Modern Art. According to Abramovic herself, this is strongly disputed not to be satanic as many accusations have been made by religious leaders but rather ritual esotericism for the art of performer and audience relationship.

Routinely, Abramovic has also modelled with pictures of full frontal nudity with prepubescent children appearing naked. This following photography shoot was taken for the Spring/Summer Edition of Dust Magazine's front cover, where Abramovic modelling with Givenchy clothing appears to be dominating over the naked boy named Louis. It also appears like it could be an allegorical symbolism for keeping such sinister activities in the dark. Even exploring publications such as "Bums & Tums" by Dust Magazine shows how easily they are willing to sexualize and cater towards an audience using depictions of young men (likely aged 15-25) in a strange fashion.

Abramović is a world-renowned artist and with her HBO Documentary “The Artist is Present” won various awards such as the Panorama Audience Award at the Berlin International Film Festival in 2012 or the 34th News & Documentary Emmy Awards the following year. Performance Arts as executed by Abramović involves participation among the artist and various other participants to engage, which can typically involve endurance and body arts. In one particular event involved her sitting still for 736 hours, stimulating drug movements on stage, while other shows involved menstrual blood.

Marina!,

What place do you see the occult having within contemporary art; can magick be made (not simply appropriated/ performed)?

Thanks, K

abramovicinstitute Marina Abramovic 29 points · 7 years ago

Everything depends on which context you are doing what you are doing. If you are doing the occult magic in the context of art or in a gallery, then it is the art. If you are doing it in different context, in spiritual circles or private house or on TV shows, it is not art. The intention, the context for what is made, and where it is made defines what art is or not.

(Source: Abramovic conducted a “Reddit AMA” in 2013 and answered a question regarding the relationship of occult with contemporary art)

According to Abramovic, contemporary art depends on the context such as whether it is in an environment designated for open showcase or whether it is done in more private ventures. It can be said that if ‘Spirit Cooking’ was done privately, then it would no longer necessarily be feasible ‘art’. To engage in what is called “Spirit Cooking’ dinner would involve a more hands-on ritualistic approach to the performance, in which people consume in a ‘mock cannibalism' form of practice where it can be more “spiritualistic and intimate”. Some of her support and participation has involved people such as Jay-Z, Gwen Stefani, President Obama, Podesta Brothers, the Clintons, Lady Gaga, Debbie Harry, Tilda Swanson or Nicole Ritiche.

Again this might be pure harmless fun they are completely entitled to engage in but it could be questionable whether this suggests they are capable of doing further actions. Here are some examples from the Museum of Contemporary Arts Gala events:

(Gwen Stefani and a life-sized nude cake made up of red velvet flavour and decorative mannequin parts which was made in collaboration with postmodern culinary artists at Kreëmart.

(Spirit cooking dining in which patrons consume a soup mixture that is rested in a tub exposed with a nude performer)

CYCLISTANONS

(Another example of the highly realistic mannequin cake is butchered by Debbie Harry)

(Performing arts recreation of Abramovic's 'Nude with Skeleton' exhibit where a nude performer is asked to rest upon a table with a fake skeleton model on top of them while they are being rotated continuously as the focal point. According to Abramovic, this visual is designed to represent the frightening mood of inevitable death. The juxtaposition of a real life human body and a skeleton is designed to test someone's morality and sight of fate)

Half of the performance involved actual constructed food products while for some involved real-life body artists who would lay down or appear with this floating head illusion exhibit. It is a fact that these were public stunts, and nobody was actually physically harmed in the process. Despite the nature of the arts and the people involved, there is zero evidence that Abramovic personally is engaged in any nefarious activities at the time. Coincidentally it might just be simply that despite the nature of the art and performance, they are still an alternative form that may remain solely as a personal source of harmless entertainment. There are three explanations:

- One that all of this is real, and no investigation has officially occurred either because law enforcement is complicit or genuinely believe the claims are outlandish and not worth looking into
- Two, nothing bad is happening and this is just a group of people engaging in unusual socializing, regardless of any official investigation and this was a whole waste of time
- Three, there is some sort of sinister activity occurring but not as serious as many may think,

To answer whether any of the presented PizzaGate evidence here would be admissible within a judicial court, well very unlikely that it would result in a successful indictment given the need for a precise standard of proof. Ultimately, if these people were to be brought to trial, then it's the prosecution responsibility to bear the burden of proof. The reason being because you can't simply prosecute someone for exhibiting strange behaviour, having associates with criminal backgrounds or even if they suggest they had engaged in such crimes, the prosecutors would still have the burden of proof to provide concrete physical evidence that confirms it. Even so it is also evidence coming from private emails, and it's not easy to simply rely on illegally obtained information. Maybe all the weird sexual comments and actions could have been poorly timed inside jokes not meant for open scrutiny. Some of this might even be all done for pure business capacity because somehow they might assume this can appeal to the general public.

Usually before any official investigation, it would rely on a presentable victim who is evident with harm, any possible witnesses and of course the crime scene that would expose a breach of law. This relates to the body of law essential for corpus delicti where the legal standing for enacting sanctions against someone is proof that the crime has been committed. Even when things surface, the prosecution is still liable that they can link them to the evidence that directly correlates to the cause of the crime, individuals with a motive usually isn't enough to uncover an investigation.

Any evidence would require causation to prove it directly to any actus reus and mens rea. So in reality there is still a need for further extensive investigation, which the most probable cause for this would likely only result in a sanctioned psychiatric evaluation or registered on a homeland security watch list.

Beyond reasonable doubt would need to be validated to help warrant an effective conviction, meaning it can be unconstitutional if evidence was taken against personal beliefs, associations or use of speech. Owning a suspicious company would also be legal for an individual especially if there is a limited liability held within the entity. Someone could use code-words, have a strange lifestyle and even pretend to commit a crime and this would likely still be within their rights:

- They do have the right to own "strange and weird" art, publish material without persecution and associate with groups regardless of ideology. That's entirely covered by the First Amendment and any attempts to prosecute an individual for interest of art will incur a serious constitutional breach.
- Most of the evidence regarding their acts were also unethically and illegally obtained, could you really prosecute someone after violating them like that?
- They still have the right to have a fair and impartial trial by an impartial judge and jury, guaranteeing the right to be informed of the accusations and witness evidence provided
- Of course, they are still guaranteed to the full protection of the law as per all individuals subject to US jurisdiction

Unless they were under oath against the penalties of perjury, anything they did say before would be difficult to charge as it could very well easily pass as unintentional sarcasm. However, this doesn't mean these serious allegations should be dismissed, as unproductively doing so simply excuses for these possible behaviours to continue. Just because a large corporation or even through a Netflix original documentary claims it's "debunked", doesn't make it exactly truthful. Until an appropriate and official investigation can be taken, then it is inappropriate to dismiss the present facts because once it goes through, they will be severely punished if found guilty. Hopefully every good prosecutor out there still has hope to prepare a well-deserved and lifesaving indictment, and I wish all the suspected individuals that have been listed the best after prison.

Reasons to suggest Jeffrey Epstein's death was not suicide

- Jeffrey Epstein was kept in at the Metropolitan Correctional Center which has been known for its supermax prison standards (enough to previously incarcerate El Chapo), prison guards were instructed to maintain 24/7 surveillance at all times including physically inspecting every 30 minutes. The two prison guards who were on overtime were later to have been found to have falsified their logs and discovered to have fell asleep which left the cell unmonitored for over three-hours, despite instructions not to leave Epstein alone. The prison the night of the death was also short-staffed as only 10 of the 18 staff members assigned to that shift had shown up, given eight were unable to attend that night.

- CCTV surveillance that involved two cameras stationed outside the cell (which at the time were also pointed in the wrong direction) was mysteriously erased by 'technical errors'. Examination by the FBI also failed to find any trace of the deleted footage even on backup systems and it had been destroyed, it was claimed by US Attorneys that the footage was deleted as the stream was being saved from the incorrect prison cell. According to the prison it uses an extensive backup server especially for those on high-alert, it wouldn't have been possibly lost unless the physical hard-drive was damaged itself which would have made the possibility of destroying it an accident a very rare possibility.

- At 1:30am July 23rd 2019, Epstein was discovered in his cell appearing to be unresponsive and with neck injuries, while Epstein denied that he had attempted suicide but did allege that his cellmate former police officer named Nicholas Tartaglione (serving time for murdering four people) had tried to "beat him half-way to death". However upon an internal investigation by the prison, it was concluded that it was a suicide attempt with Tartaglione claiming he “tried to save him”, which according to his defence lawyer Bruce Barket argued that he had also initially alerted the guards. A few weeks ago, Tartaglione also was found with a prohibited cellphone two weeks ago which was promptly confiscated.

-While Jeffrey Epstein was placed on suicide watch, this would have assigned him to an observation cell where there were windows surrounding it to give an unobstructed oversight by both guards and a psychologist. However, he was taken off suicide watch following a psychology assessment on July 30th and returned to the Special Housing Unit on the advice he was placed at the cell closest to the guard’s desk. The US Department of Justice was notified by the prison that from then on there would be 30-minute routine inspections of Epstein and a cellmate (Bill Mersey). However, one day before the death of Epstein would result in an unexplained transfer of Mersey to another facility yet no replacement for another cellmate. US Bureau of Prisons standards prioritize the need for inmate referrals to be housed with suicidal inmates as it is considered “vital role in helping to prevent inmate suicide”.

-Previously, a protective order was made to the US District Court with the proposal for Epstein’s defence to muzzle any disclosure of names relating to any other associates due to “privacy reasons”. Richard Berman the US District Judge was yet to have authorised the order to be made, likely sparking panic. We also know that for multiple years, there were already an extensive cover-up regarding Epstein’s sex-ring.

-In the past 21 years, only one suicide has ever occurred at the Metropolitan Correctional Center and many speculations have suggested the cells located on the ninth floor were “near impossible to commit suicide within” according to a former inmate . Epstein who is 6-foot-tall, had impossibly been found hanging from a 5.7-foot-tall steel-frame bed that physically could not be moved, whilst strangling himself kneeling with shredded bed sheets.

-According to official autopsy reports, Epstein was found to have broken his hyoid bone along with two fractures on both sides of the larynx within the Adam’s Apple. Although this is possible for hanging victims, it’s pattern on observation is more frequent to be indictive in homicide victims as suggested by a private forensic investigator hired by the Epstein family. It also considers the nature of the prison cell compared to most aggressive suicide hangings. Medically in order to sustain such an injury as shown by Epstein would have required an aggressive drop of 5-9 feet rather than just bedsheets tied to a bed. Unexplained wounds on the arm and wrists were also discovered on the body with no explanation.

-There were also doubts on why other dangerous objects in the cell weren't used, this included a sleep-apena machine, electrical cord and even a ballpoint pen was found. A note was also found following the death but alternatively had rather involved complaints about prison conditions.

-38 minutes before the death was announced, a post on 4chan allegedly from a staff member at the New York City Fire Department detailing the nature of the death in precise detail. FDNY claimed they had also made an internal investigation and concluded that none of them had made such post despite factually accurate medical information. No whereabouts on how this occurred has been promptly confirmed with the only official response stating if a first responder had leaked such information it would have been a major privacy law violation.

-Epstein's own lawyers were also sceptical on the death as they had claimed he had also mentioned he would be seeing them the following day with the hope of being released. Around that time, Epstein was already preparing to appeal his bail which at the time of the death was already pending to the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Many testimonies have also suggested that suicide was extremely unlikely for Epstein given his supposed character and determination to have been released on bail.
